STORM SWEEPS LONDON

HAIL AS BIG AS PIGEONS' EGGS

Sharp thunderstorms visited the South of England yesterday and did considerable damage. At Alton, Hants, hailstones as big as marbles fell, and water flowed through the high street twelve inches deep, flooding shops, banks and business premises. The fire brigade had to pump water out of two hotels and other premises.

In half an hour London experienced every variety of weather except snow. Torrents poured through the city streets and into the District Railway, causing a current failure between Aldgate and Stepney. Trains were held up for fifteen minutes during the homeward rush hour. In Hendon, Finchley and Cricklewood gutters and drains were unable to cope for a while with the sudden downpour.

At Wallington, Surrey, hailstones up to three-quarters of an inch in diameter fell for over half an hour. The sun was still shining when, without warning, the first came down. Subsequently there was torrential rain, accompanied by vivid lightning and heavy thunder.

The deluge flooded roads in the Orpington district, and traffic there and at Sevenoaks and Polehill had difficulty in negotiating some stretches. There was hail in this area, while thunder shook the buildings. In some parts of London heavy rain, accompanied by hail and violent thunder, lasted an hour.

A house in Hillcrest road, Orpington, Kent, was damaged by lightning, and another in Harwood avenue, Bromley, Kent.

"Fair periods and local thunderstorms" is the forecast for to-morrow.

FIVE DEAD

UNREST IN PALESTINE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

JERUSALEM, Monday.

The casualty list from incidents in different localities during the last 24 hours is three Jews killed and one wounded, two Arabs killed and three wounded.

Two fresh outrages are now reported: An Arab villager was shot and seriously wounded while walking in a street of Northern Tel Aviv late this afternoon. It is stated that a young lad drove up on a bicycle, fired four times, and made good his escape.

A third Arab was shot this evening on Mount Scopus, a northern suburb of Jerusalem. His condition is reported to be serious.

A bomb was thrown this evening at the Jaffa border of a street in the town of Tel Aviv, one Jew being slightly wounded.

POPE'S GIFT FOR BASQUE CHILDREN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, Monday.

The Pope has sent a gift of 30,000 lira (about £320) to the representative of the Vatican in insurgent Spain, in aid of the children's fund at Santander, and for the repatriation of Basque children at present in France, according to a San Sebastian journal.

Another report from San Sebastian to-day states that a wireless message from Gijon to Madrid has been intercepted, asking the Valencia Government to send ships to evacuate troops and artillery from the Asturias.

This message bears out a report from Paris that the authorities responsible for the defence of Gijon are anxious to open negotiations for the surrender of the town, where the acute food shortage and general indiscipline of the troops are said to be giving the Republican leaders the gravest concern.

The insurgent advance along the coast to the west of Santander continues slowly.

WRECKING TRIAL IN GEORGIA

"PLOT TO MURDER SOVIET LEADERS"

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Monday.

The trial of eleven leaders of a "counter-revolutionary terrorist wrecking and separatist" organisation in Georgia is revealed in the Zaria Vostoka, a Tiflis daily newspaper, just received in Moscow.

The trial began in Signakh, Georgia, on August 24th, but no report has so far appeared in the newspapers here.

The indictment accuses the men of preparing armed insurrection against the Soviet Government and of planning the assassination of Soviet leaders and the reintroduction of capitalism under the direction of the alleged "Georgian Rightist Counter-Revolutionary Centre."

It is alleged that all have pleaded guilty and declined counsel, insisting on conducting their own cases. The indictment says one of the men, Abashidze, has testified to a conversation with Agniashvilli in which the latter said war was expected in 1937, when the conspirators would and must rise against the Soviet Government and seize power.

The indictment also alleges that Agniashvilli was to be the head of the new Government. Meanwhile he asked Abashidze to recruit assistants and kill Beria, leader of the Georgian Communist Party.

The defendants are stated to have confessed to spreading infection among cattle, destroying agricultural machinery, and antagonising peasants against the Soviet Government.

The Zaria Vostoka demands the death penalty, and reports that mass meetings have been held, at which thousands of workers clamoured for the death of the accused.

Six officials of the collective farms in the Ostrovsky region of Leningrad, including the woman director of a machine tractor station, were sentenced to death to-day. They had been accused of sabotaging cattle-breeding and terrorising peasants

CALEDONIA'S TOUR OF BRITAIN

ARRIVAL AT HULL

Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia, which commenced her tour of the coast of Britain yesterday, arrived at Hull shortly after five p.m. and was moored on the River Humber between Hull and Hessle.

It was originally arranged that the Caledonia should proceed to Brough after flying over Hull, but owing to the state of the tide, it being at low water, another berth was selected so that the crew might get ashore earlier in the evening.

Before starting this morning six hundred gallons of petrol and thirty gallons of oil will be put in the Caledonia's tanks.

CLIPPER'S RETURN ATLANTIC FLIGHT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

LISBON, Monday.

The Pan-American Clipper, which was on the homeward trans-Atlantic crossing by the Southern route, via Portugal, and the Azores, alighted in the Tagus at 5.10 p.m. to-day, B.S.T.

The Clipper III. recently flew by the Southern route from America to Southampton.

DROWNED ON HOLIDAY

FIANCEE ON BEACH

Harry Tudor (22), of Long lane, Harriseahead, Stoke-on-Trent, was drowned near Boscombe Pier, Bournemouth, last night when he slipped off a paddle float.

He only arrived in Bournemouth on Sunday for a holiday with his fiancée, Miss Doreen Roberts, of Hanley, her mother and some friends, all of whom were on the shore at the time but did not see the accident.

A Corporation boatman saw Tudor sinking and threw a lifebelt, which he was unable to catch.

Play produced by Hugh Hunt.

The Abbey Theatre last night presented the rewritten version of Mr. Lennox Robinson's "The Lost Leader," which must be one of the most thrilling plays that Dublin has seen for a long time. From the opening scene it grasps the imagination and suspense is held to the last tragic scene.

It has for its theme the belief that Parnell did not die, that the body that went to "brown Glasnevin" was not his, but that of an unknown Russian immigrant. Parnell did not die, according to the play, but in the person of Lucius Lenihan he went into retirement in a remote place with his memories—a woman, false friends and a name. Through a series of coincidences, however, he is brought to "life" again as the great leader and causes a crisis in Irish politics during the troubled days of 1917.

It is not the action alone, nor the fantastic story of a legend becoming fact that makes it great, but the character and the whole play from his first entry as "poor Lucius," a humble old man. The audience was entranced—at times a pin could have been heard to drop—and the Abbey audiences are seldom so sensitive.

Although only 25 years of age, Mr. Devlin's greatest successes have been in plays where he played the part of an old man, and a London critic described him as "the finest 'Lear' within living memory." To have seen him last night as Parnell must have ranked for most people as an experience which they will long remember. There was subtlety and power in his acting—and inspiration. He was nervous of the part, he said a few days ago. He was nervous of the voice but he doubted whether Parnell had any definite "brogue" at all. He has acted on that supposition—and with what wisdom guided! To have adulterated this noble, expressive voice with a false "brogue" would have been nothing less than a calamity. For a delicate drawing of character, for a portrayal of a feeble old man whose greatness not even age and poverty could hide, and for such consummate sympathy with a part, Mr. Devlin's performance last night must remain one of the most accomplished pieces of acting that have been seen in this city.

The other characters, too, were sans reproche, but they were as shadows behind the personality of "The Leader." Cyril Cusack, as the Cockney reporter who by accident came across the secret of Parnell and "splashed" it, had a part that showed him to be a clever actor, and W. O'Gorman as the blind beggar-singer, one of the last of the disciples, must have established himself in this part as one of the Abbey's leading character players. The other outstanding performances were by Ann Clery as the niece of old Lucius, Tadgh Forbes as Peter Cooney, J.P., and P. J. Considine as Major John White, most autocratic and die-hard of Unionists

The play ends with a struggle in which the blind pedlar, anxious to defend a slight on "his leader," strikes out with a staff in his darkness and fells, not the gombeen man, but the Leader himself. He dies before they have heard his message.

Mr. Hugh Hunt, as the producer, must be congratulated.

THE THEATRE ROYAL

"HARLEM ON PARADE"

It is no exaggeration to say that Dublin has not for a long time been offered such splendid value as the programme at the Theatre Royal this week. Even without "Harlem on Parade" it would be a first-class show, and the large and enthusiastic audiences attending yesterday's performances showed that the enterprise of the management in scuring such an excellent bill is realised and appreciated.

For the greater part of an hour one is transported to New York's negro quarters for a fast-moving entertainment, for music with something of the African jungle in it, for dancing that is terrific in its pace and its cleverness, for singing that has the charm and depth of the negro spirituel or the noise and abandon of the Harlem dance hall on night club.

At the background is a real negro "jazz" band, with the brass and saxophones predominating, but especially the brass. Supporting it, or being supported by it, there is Billy Bailie, claimed to be the world's champion tap dancer; the Lindy Hoppers, who just must be seen to be believed; a clever young negro and negress, whose dancing, particularly their first "simultaneous" number, is slick and clever; the original Tramp Band, which is amusing rather than musical, and a vocalist in the Paul Robeson style, who "brought down the house" last night. Each of the artists in the show gives generously and, apparently, enthusiastically.

Of the other turns Kitty Masters herself would be an adequate top of the bill in ordinary circumstances. She sings a number of popular songs, and her variations on "Harbour Nights" had the merit of being amusing, clever and tuneful. There is a series of dances by those clever Dublin children who have delighted Royal audiences in the past—the resources of that school seem to be inexhaustible—and there are various other turns, such as balancing acts, a lightning cartoonist and a troupe of tumblers. The picture part of the programme is short, but interesting.

THE GAIETY THEATRE

A BRIGHT VARIETY PROGRAMME

The war rumour appears to have crept into every phase of life to-day; it is impossible to escape it, even when one goes out for a night's amusement. Last night Tommy Westwood, pianist and vocalist, sang about war, in a light-hearted fashion, it is true, stressing all the things which the man in the street would prefer to it, but the serious note of the last verses seemed to meet a deeper response. His othr songs, especially the "swing" number and the clever burlesque of the B.B.C. soprano, were in keeping with the joyous level attained by the other turns in a good variety bill.

Harry Welchman, popular singer in musical comedy, sang a number of selections from old favourites, including "A Bachelor Gay" (Maid of the Mountains), with humorous character studies of the various stages of a man's life; "One Alone" (The Desert Song), and the Cigarette Song. This was a pleasant turn, too, which the audience thoroughly enjoyed. As a contrast Eve Becke, fresh from a successful American tour, rendered newer melodies in the modern style, but in "Carelessly" showed herself capable of true singing.

Billy O'Connor, with his fifty-two assistants—a pack of cards—would be a most unpopular opponent in contract bridge. Not only can he name every card in the pack after it has been shuffled, but he appears to be able to change a deuce for an ace in a manner that would surprise even Culbertson.

Most people would be content merely to be able to play a musical instrument. Godfrey is not. He dances freakishly as he plays his violin. Renee, his partner, is a delightfully light toe-dancer. Eddie Bowers is another discontented musician, he nonchalantly thrusts his hands in his pockets as he plays the harmonica.

The Dawne Sisters open the programme with songs and effective dances, and the Three Romps conclude it with some good tumbling turns.

The orchestra, conducted by Ernest Broadhurst, play as interval music, pleasant selections from the film "Wake Up and Live."

GATE THEATRE

"NIGHT MUST FALL"

The third week of Emlyn Williams's thriller opened last night before an audience which appeared to be as large as any of those of the other two weeks. The popularity which the play is enjoying in Dublin is a tribute to its quality and to the ability of the company, which has been giving performances of a very high standard.

The play is of the type commonly associated with Russian dramatists, psychological, with a gloomy atmosphere, which is not relieved by the frequent humourous incidents. The opening scene, most effectively introduced by the orchestra, shows a man being sentenced to death, and the rest of the action shows the events leading up to the trial. Micheal MacLiammoir and Meriel Moore give first class performances, and the rest of the cast deserves equal praise.

OLYMPIA THEATRE

MEMORIES OF 1914

A very interesting entertainment was produced at the Olympia Theatre last evening. Its title is "Splinters," and it is described as the exact programme as played in France by Les Rouges et Noires in the autumn of 1914, when it scored a great hit with the troops. At the end of the war the British public were anxious to see the show which they had heard so much about from their relatives who had seen it played in France. After twenty years of almost unbroken performances, "Splinters" is going even stronger than ever.

It was received with enthusiasm by the audiences here. It consists of thirteen scenes, from the amateur sleuth-hound, in which Will B. Willby, Hal Jones, Tony Cooper, Roy Byng, Bina Leopold, and Stanley Beedle give a highly amusing sketch. Other members of the cast who play leading parts are Maunsell and Ling, banjoists; Eric and Cole, Jack Russell, Geoff Hawkins (Eastern dancer), Dany O'Dare, and Harry Tracey.

There is plenty of good music and singing, and Jack Russell is a rare whistler. A brilliant show is given by a group of young lady dancers. There is not a dull moment in the performance from the rise of the curtain to its fall.

GALWAY HARBOUR SCHEME

CONFERENCE ON LABOUR DISPUTE

Some progress was made yesterday at the conference held to try to settle the dispute which is holding up the £200,000 scheme for the reconstruction of Galway Harbour. The conference, which was held at the offices of the Department of Industry and Commerce, was attended by representatives of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union and of Associated Contractors, Ltd., the French firm in charge of the work.

At the beginning of work on the harbour the workers demanded an increase in wages to 52s. 6d. per week, the same as that paid by the Galway Corporation, and at a subsequent conference they turned down an offer of 10d. per hour.

At yesterday's conference a number of proposals were rejected by the men's representatives, who finally decided to put before the men an offer which, they stated, was not acceptable to themselves. The following were present:—M. Sainson, M. Maine and M. Vais (Associated Contractors); Messrs. M. Campbell, C. Clarke and G. M'Leod (Galway Harbour Commissioners); Messrs. J. Healy, J. J. McNamara, J. Gilhooley and C. O'Shannon (Irish Transport and General Workers' Union). Two other trades unions are also interested in the matter.

MARRIAGE OFFER WAS REJECTED

William McKibbin, a brother, said that his brother was 29 years of age and was employed as a chauffeur in Donaghadee.

A girl stated that McKibbin had been on friendly terms with her since November, 1935. He called to see her on Sunday.

And you could not fall in with his request?—No.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

UNDERTONE SOMEWHAT STEADIER

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, Monday.

There was little in the day's news of the American trade position to influence Wall street—which remained calm even in the face of the latest episode near Shanghai. Demand originated chiefly from day-to-day operators, who bought in selective fashion on expectations of a substantial technical rally. The market ended on a good note, though the turnover was a mere 460,000 shares—the lowest for more than two months.

The advances were carried quietly further in the final dealings, with some short covering reported here and there, and the close was firm. Gains of fractions to 1 dollar were numerous, and outstanding cheerfulness was evident in the Steel division, Case, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, Eastman Kodak and Sears Roebuck.

Sterling exchange opened at ⅛ down to 4.96 15/16, and remained at this level throughout the morning. The rate improved to 4.97 in the afternoon, and finally closed ⅛ higher, compared with the previous close, at 4.97 1/16.

Silver was unchanged at 44¾.

DUBLIN SMALL

CONVERSION LOAN EASIER

MAY ROBERTS (IRELAND) ORD. LOWER

In view of the prevailing uncertainty public interest remained at very low ebb on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday and the tone was easier for choice.

The Free State Funds were well maintained, apart from Conversion Loan, which gave way to 105⅞. War Loan eased the turn, but Banks held up well.

Guinness repeated 129s. 6d., but a little support brought Power Deb up to 19s. 9d.

Great Southern Rails attracted support and the Pref. rose a point, while the Guar. hardened to 71¼.

Alliance Gas Ord. and Johnston Mooney Ord. were unchanged.

Irish-American Oil Pref. fell 1s. and May Roberts (Ireland) Ord. on profit-taking lost several pence.

Irish Tanners, Ltd., are paying an Ordinary dividend of 5 per cent., and the preliminary figures are excellent. The shares held steady at 9s.

Carroll Pref. improved to 24s. and Denny Pref. to 11¼. Ever Ready (Ireland) Ord. drooped to 12s. and Irish Cinema Ord. eased the turn. Solus Ord were raised to 21s. 6d. and Irish Dunlop Pref. to 27s. 6d.

The feature in Tobaccos was the selling of Imperials, which resulted in a fall of 1s. 6d. Coats Ord. opened easier, but recovered later to 45s. 9d.

Imperial Chemical Ord. held 37s. 10½d. and Dunlop Rubbers changed hands at 35s. and Unilever Ord. at 42s. 6d.

LONDON FLAT

CHINESE BONDS WEAK

The latest developments in the Far Eastern situation were not calculated to improve sentiment on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and consequently there was no sign of any resumption of activity. Throughout the session business was on extremely small lines, with sellers predominating, and the tendency in most departments rather dull. Chinese Bonds again presented a weak appearance, and the uncertainty of Wall Street led to further reductions among trans-Atlantics. Unfavourable movements were common in the Industrial Market, where the recent decline in Shipping shares continued to restrict operations, and the investment groups were subdued under the lead of gilt-edged stocks. A bright feature was provided by a late rally in Kaffirs, but prices in this section rarely closed higher on balance.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Early trading in gilt-edged securities witnessed investment buying on a modest scale, but the market became idle during the afternoon, and the leading issues were unable to maintain their initial levels. Funding Fours lost ⅛ to 110⅛, while Old Consols, Local Loans and certain Conversion stocks finished with small recessions. By contrast, India stocks displayed a firmness from the start, and the Threes gained ¼ to 78.

FOREIGN BONDS.

In a quiet Foreign Bond group some improvement took place in Germans, and other Europeans held up well in the absence of interest. Far Easterns remained out of favour, and Chinese Bonds eventually showed falls ranging up to 1½. Japanese developed a slightly firmer tendency towards the end, however, and the principal issues regained initial declines.

RAILS.

British Rails found a little support on the acceptance of the Railway Tribunal's award by the Railway Clerks' Association, but dealings were insufficient to bring about any significant movement. Quiet conditions also ruled in the Foreign Rail section and San Paulo Ord. dropped a point to 84½. Argentines were pointed upwards, however, and "B.A.G.S." hardened to 24½. American Rails were mostly dull, and among Colonials Canadas lost ground.

INDUSTRIALS.

Business in Industrials was negligible, and prices were allowed to drift, though there was practically no selling pressure. Shipping shares continued to suffer from fears of reduced earnings, while Tobaccos were overshadowed by dulness in "B.A.T.S." Motors, after a firm start, conformed to the general trend, and declines were also marked in certain Electrical Equipment and Textiles shares. Iron and Steels formed a fairly cheerful group, with Staveleys and Vickers showing to best advantage, and other issues which came in for favourable attention included Courtaulds and Imperial Chemicals.

MINES.

Mines made a poor start, and Kaffirs quickly gave way under pressure of sales from the Cape. Subsequently the selling movement was replaced by support, and shortly before the close the market took a turn for the better. Several early declines were converted into small rises, and prices generally finished fairly steady. Other Gold shares sagged amid quiet trading, and the leading Rhodesian Copper shares, together with certain other base metal issues, moved against holders owing to the lack of buying force.

THE MONEY MARKET

GOLD OVER £7

As a result of the further strengthening of the American dollar, the price of gold advanced yesterday to over £7 per fine ounce. At 140s. 1d. it was 2d. per ounce higher than on Saturday. The dollar rate at the fixing was taken as 4.9635. Sales of gold effected were to the value of £266,000.

The price of silver improved again, gaining 1/16d. to 19⅞d. per ounce for both spot and forward positions. This was due to Indian buying, in conjunction with only small offerings of the metal. The general tone of the market was steady. In the Money market to-day Loans continued in quiet demand at ½ per cent., with the discount rate on short and three months bills maintained at 9/16 per cent.

Interest was still focussed upon the dollar in the Foreign Exchange market yesterday. Business was heavy and movements in rates were no less wide than on the closing days of last week. The dollar failed to maintain a further sharp advance, heavy selling in the afternoon causing a setback, which actually left the exchange slightly less favourable to New York on the day. There appeared to be little doubt that the first resistance to the rising trend of the dollar came from official sources, although selling pressure was subsequently swollen as a result of a fairly wide movement to liquidate bull positions at the first sign of a reaction. The dollar's advance in the morning had proved quite as startling as those recorded on Friday and Saturday last, and as then was due in part to commercial buying and in part to Paris demands. European currencies generally maintained their previous close link with the dollar. Thus early gains against sterling were lost before the close final rates usually proving rather more favourable to London.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

Business in the "Street" market last evening was practically at a standstill, and with Wall street quiet internationals were scarcely altered. U.S. Steels eased at first to 109⅞, but rallied to 110. Nickels held around 62⅞, and Tractions hardened slightly to 25½. Anacondas, however, receded 1/16 to 11 1/16, and business was done in Radios at 11¼. New York Centrals changed hands at 35⅞, while in the Motor group Chryslers and General Motors were quoted at 109⅜ and 54¼, respectively.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

DULL AND FEATURELESS

Dealers in the Industrial market reported one of the most featureless days even of recent weeks, yesterday. With an almost complete lack of public interest, prices moved only a few pence in either direction.

Following a slightly improved Wall street opening advice trans-Atlantic made a better showing. International Nickels gained ⅛ to 62⅞, and Brazilian Tractions rose to 25¼. Radios were also supported. The Radio group failed to derive any benefit from news of record business at the show.

A moderate demand for Cable and Wireless Preference raised the price to 110⅜, and Marconi Marines were also firmer.

Dealings in Iron and Steel descriptions were on an extremely small scale, and had little influence on prices. Harland and Wolff "B" Ordinary were quoted at 15s. on their introduction to the market.

Electrical Equipments, for the most part, suffered from neglect, and the only price changes finally recorded were a fall of 6d. in Ever Ready to 32s. and a loss of 3d. in Siemens at 33s. 9d.

Aircraft shares continued idle, and prices, where changed, moved against holders. Rolls-Royce declined to 5 1/16. Failing any definite support Motor shares closed easier where changed. Triplex came on offer and finished 1s. down on balance at 65s. 6d.

Stores issues were rather undecided. There was some inquiry for O.K. Bazaars, but John Barker fell back to 76s. Although there was not a great deal of activity, Textiles had a firm appearance. Bradford Dyers hardened to 8s. and the Pref. to 12s. 1½d., while Whitworth and Mitchell improved to 19s. 6d.

Rayons also showed up fairly well. Courtaulds were the turn higher at 54s. 10½d., as were British Celanese at 7s. 10½d.

The Brewery section had a quiet appearance, and Guinness sagged to 129s.

Tobaccos made a dull showing, with fractional losses occurring in "Bats," "Imps" and other leaders.

There was a moderate turnover among the Newspapers, which left the group with an irregular appearance. A quietly firm tone ruled among the Banks, and prices were usually a shade better where changed. Hong Kong and Shanghai rallied ½ to 97½. The Shipping group was again dull, but in the absence of any pressure to sell movements, on the whole, were unimportant. Clan Lines came on offer and shed ¼ to 8⅞. The Realisation issues were each a few pence lower on balance. Among the Lands, Hudsons Bays slipped back to 33s. on further adverse crop news, but Argentine Lands improved to 15s. 6d.

The Miscellaneous section reflected the general quietness of other departments and very little of interest developed.

OILS IRREGULAR

Oil Shares commenced the week in quiet fashion, business all round once more being on an extremely small scale, and the market sensitive to transactions which normally would be without influence. Professional operators hesitated to enter upon fresh commitments of any real importance, while the general public showed hardly any interest in this section of the Stock Exchange. Leading issues generally made a firm start, despite the small amount of interest shown. Later, however, internationals became dull under the lead of Royal Dutch, which were freely offered from the Continent. Shells were also subjected to Continental realisations. Firm spots were not altogether lacking, and were to be found mainly in Anglo-Iranians and Burmahs, which again met with a steady investment enquiry, to which the prices responded.

RUBBERS IDLE

While the undertone of the Rubber share market yesterday continued to reflect the firmness of the commodity, business proceeded on extremely small lines. Most issues were completely neglected, and occasional sales gave prices a downward tendency. Final prices were little changed from Friday's closing levels, however, and the few declines which occurred were insignificant. Exceptionally, Malayalam attracted favourable attention and gained 9d. to 35s. 7½d. The commodity section was quiet and featureless, with spot rubber unchanged at 8⅜d. per lb. The increase in U.K. rubber stocks during the past week was closely in accordance with market expectations at 1,227 tons.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS FIRMER AT THE CLOSE

Business in the Mining Market yesterday showed very little, if any, indications of an expansion. During the greater part of the day dealers were still disinclined to acquire extra shares, being evidently still disposed to adopt a cautious policy in view of the political situation.

Trade in Kaffirs was still, on the whole, extremely quiet. Little significant movement one way or the other was seen during the earlier dealings, inquiry on both Cape and London account being extremely small. There was, however, a useful improvement in the tone towards the close, for which a revival of Cape interest was held partly responsible. Diamond shares gave a rather disappointing display, quotations being generally inclined to lose ground. Though there was comparatively little selling going on, the Rhodesian Copper shares slipped back at first for no very obvious reason, but improved before the close, and showed little movement on balance.

West African and Westralian issues remained almost entirely neglected. Similarly, in the base metals and miscellaneous groups dealers could only report a very limited business, with prices, if anything, being inclined to lose ground. Nowhere, however, was any weakness apparent. Closing prices:

Solus, Teoranta.—The report of the directors for the year ended 30th June, 1937, states that, after making provision for all applicable charges, there is a profit of £10,992. Out of this provision has been made for directors' fees, depreciation of plant, machinery, and motor cars, making £2,658, leaving an available balance of £8,333, which the directors propose should be allocated as follows:—Provision for income tax, Schedule "D," £1,250; transfer to reserve for bad debts, £250; write off debit balance on profit and loss account as on 1st July, 1936, £3,312; write off preliminary expenses account £1,086, pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent., less income tax, on the paid-up Ord. share capital for the year ended 30th June, 1937, £1,937—making a total of £7,836; leaving the carry forward to next account £496. The meeting will be held at Jury's Hotel, Dublin, at 11 a.m. on 6th September.

Anglo-Alpha Cement.—Net profit for the year to June 30 last is £91,177. Of a total of £82,388 standing at the credit of the share premium account £76,094 has been used to meet the amalgamation and issue expenses, etc., and pay the Debenture interest to the commencement of operations at the Hennenman factory, leaving a balance of £6,293 carried to appropriation account. The 5 per cent. dividend already announced took £41,929, and £40,000 is transferred to general reserve, leaving £30,784 forward.

Antwerp Waterworks.—Interim of 4½ per cent. (Same.)

Bank of Nova Scotia.—Dividend of 3 per cent.

Industrial Finance and Investment.—Corporation dividends and interest, net profit of sale of investments, discount and commissions, etc., amounted to £139,579 in the year to June 30 last. This shows a rise of £27,148 on the previous year's figure of £112,431, and, after deducting £17,464 (against £42,173) for discounts, etc., on realisation of loans and advances, there remains £112,115. Adding £15,887 brought in, and £573 from tax reserve, the total is raised to £138,755. Debenture interest, expenses and directors' fees absorbed £26,807, and, after allowing £48,971 for depreciation on investments, the balance available for dividends is £62,976. This is £5,411 below the corresponding figure in the previous accounts, when £31,488 was credited for appreciation of investments, and £15,000 was transferred to reserve for loans and advances. As already announced, the directors have maintained the dividend on the Ordinary shares at 2 per cent., less tax, which leaves the carry-forward over £5,000 lower at £10,476.

Initial Services Ltd.—Full report to end of June shows that the trading profit has expanded by £31,272 to £277,499, and, after allowing £7,322 (against £6,765) for depreciation and deducting £49,539 for tax, the amount earned for dividends is £33,267 up at £228,154. As already known, the dividend for the twelve months is maintained at 25 per cent., but the amount of Ordinary capital ranking is £690,000, as increased by the issue of 60,000 5/- shares, to be held on behalf of the management and staff. As foreshadowed in the previous report, a staff benevolent fund has been inaugurated, with an initial transfer of £1,000, and, after repeating the reserve allocation at £50,000, the balance remaining to go forward is £1,405 higher at £14,735.

Riverview Rubber.—Interim of 2½ per cent. (same) and bonus of 1½ per cent. (nil), making 4 per cent.

Ransome and Marles Bearing.—Final dividend for the year to June 30 last is 12½ per cent., making 20 per cent. This compares with 15 per cent. a year ago, when the payment was raised from 10 per cent. Sir J. L. Hulett and Sons.—Net earnings for the year are £97,500, after writing off depreciation and reserve allocations aggregating £107,500, which compares with £66,858 for the preceding year, when £48,446 was deducted for depreciation. The directors recommend a dividend of 7 per cent. on the Ord. capital (as against 5 per cent. for 1935-36).

BARMAID FOUND DEAD

STRANGLED, SAYS PATHOLOGIST

When the inquest was opened at Northwood (Middlesex) yesterday on Mrs. Lilian Maud Chamberlain, aged twenty-five, who was found dead in her flat in Green Lane, Northwood, John Thomas Rodgers, twenty-two, a barman employed at the same hotel, who is in custody on a charge of murdering Mrs. Chamberlain, was present.

The Coroner, Dr. Crone, stated that he would have to adjourn the inquest indefinitely, as a man was being charged.

William John Chamberlain, steward at the Northwood Golf Club, stated that the dead woman was the wife of his son, Ivan John Chamberlain, a railway dining car attendant. When he last saw her alive on Wednesday night last at the Northwood Hotel she was "perfectly happy and contented with life."

Albert Arthur Fisher, licensee of the hotel, said that Mrs. Chamberlain had been employed by him as a barmaid for four and a half years. She let herself out of the hotel on Wednesday night. Next morning she did not report for duty. He sent another employé named Lammas to fetch her. As the result of what Lammas said when he returned a few minutes later, witness went across the road and found Mrs. Chamberlain's body. He described Mrs. Chamberlain as a woman of the highest character.

Maurice Lammas said that he found Mrs. Chamberlain lying on the bedroom floor on her back with her feet towards the door. There were no lights on.

Sergeant G. E. Shadwell said that the body was lying with arms outstretched in a pool of blood, and there were severe head injuries.

Sir Bernard Spilsbury said that a post-mortem examination revealed that death was due to strangulation after the infliction of head injuries. He found three wounds on the back of the head, and the skull was fractured. There were other injuries on the face and neck. "There was the mark of a ligature which had been tightly drawn round the neck," added Sir Bernard.

The inquest was adjourned indefinitely.

Miss Isabella Miller, of Dunkeld, Perthshire, Scotland's oldest lady, died at the week-end. She would have celebrated her 107th birthday on September 4.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The New Earl's Court : Where Dublin Led : Photographic Exhibition : Irish Horses at York : The Little Family

London's Exhibition Hall

London's new Exhibition Hall at Earl's Court will open for its first trade show next week, when the Chocolate and Confectionery Fair offers its alluring novelties to the trade. The new Earl's Court has an area of 12½ acres and exhibition space of about 9½ acres. It is lit almost entirely by electricity, without any natural lighting even in the daytime, and is reputed to consume as much electrical current as the town of Bournemouth.

It has in its gallery seating accommodation for 23,000 people, and its car park can take 2,000 cars. It has four cafés, a banqueting hall, 25 bars (including an Alpine bar), and many tea lounges. The visitor may swim in a pool 200 feet long by 100 feet broad; may read and write, or conduct business, in its numerous reading and writing rooms; or may do his banking business in a branch bank in the building. There are 100 telephone boxes, and among its numerous lifts is one for raising lorries to the upper floors.

Earl's Court was designed especially for trade exhibitions, but it is likely to be used also for other purposes. It would seem splendidly equipped with lighting effects for such things as pageants, boxing shows, and large public gatherings of many kinds. Its use as a circus is said to be in contemplation by that familiar Horse Show rider, Mr. Bertram Mills.

Barnyard Scenes

Going through an old file I find that there is really nothing new under the sun. What is considered terrifically smart in Park Avenue or Riverside Drive to-day really happened here twenty-five years ago.

I am now thinking of Elsa Maxwell's barnyard party which she threw in New York during the winter months this year. Then all kinds of notabilities and leading society lights made up to impersonate various forces in the farmyard. Real animals and poultry were actually brought into the New York ballroom to impart the correct atmosphere.

But lo! I find that in 1908 we had a similar manifestation of genius in Dublin, when a roller-skating carnival took place. As a matter of fact those roller-skaters of Dublin would make Miss Maxwell's party look like "chicken feed," to use a modern Americanism. One noted character of the day dressed himself up as a stack of hay on that 1908 occasion. He carried a poster which bore the words: "What kind of a bird is this?"—and the answer was "a hay-cock."

Salon of Photography

I hear from Mr. T. H. A. Scanlan, the Director, that the Sixth Irish Salon of Photography will be held in the Dublin Mansion House in November, and that preparations for the event are in the final stages. For months past applications for entry forms have been coming to the Director from all parts of the world, and, although the closing date is still almost a month away, parcels of pictures have already been received at headquarters from places as far apart as China and Rumania. India and Australia.

It has always seemed something of a paradox to me that so much should be known abroad about the Irish Salon of Photography, while so little seems to be known about it at home. I am told that the Irish Salon now takes rank among the dozen most important photographic exhibitions in the world, with an entry of about 2,500 photographs. In the last exhibition pictures from 35 different countries found places on its walls.

As the Committee confines the exhibition to about 700 pictures the competition for places is very keen. The Irish Salon is probably unique in its musical programmes and tea-rooms, and arrangements have been made this year for a series of talks, by experts of international reputation, on photographic topics. In its ten years' existence the Irish Salon, with its energetic and able committee, has brought new distinction to the country.

Cloghran Yearlings

I visited the Cloghran Stud Farm on Saturday and found everyone out at the harvest.

This splendid breeding establishment has a number of very fine yearlings crossing to Doncaster this week for the sales. Outstanding among them is a Blandford filly out of Reverentia. This filly is a sister to Baber Shah and a half-sister to His Reverence, and she must really be the last of the stock of the great sire.

One might say she is faultless to look at, and if business is at all good she should be in the big money at Doncaster. In fact, she could top the sale, but then fillies, as a rule, do not often achieve that distinction.

The Cloghran draft includes some nice colts, sired by Beresford and Concerto. One colt by Beresford is out of the mare Saffian, and is a half-brother to Buland and Buland Bala.

Lady Violet Pakenham

Every time I think I am going to have a brain-wave I find some one else has got it before me.

Some time ago I realised how large Meringue cases, which I saw in a Dublin confectioner's window, could be utilised. Now I find that Lady Violet Pakenham has gone one better and invented a new "sweet," with similar ones in London. She fills them, I hear, with fresh fruit soaked in brandy, and finishes them off with cream.

Lady Violet, who is a sister of the Earl of Longford, married Mr. Anthony Powell about two years ago. He is a writer who writes stories for Hollywood. He and Lady Violet have been living at that glamorous spot, but are now back in London. While there she did all her own housekeeping and cooking, while he wrote. She has also been in Russia painting; for like all the Pakenhams Lady Violet has struck out a line of her own—and it is art. She liked Russia very much, except the Kremlin.

Lady Violet is so devoted to art that she draws from life every morning from 11 to 1, and spends the afternoon painting. She admires contemporary painters, and also has a decided regard for the post-impressionists, and—horses! She goes out in all weathers with her easel, and is quite unperturbed by the London urchins who generally gather round and stare!

Significant Names

Two horses with significant names won races last week. One was Lord Milton's Quidnunc, a winner at Limerick; the other Sir Abe Bailey's Golden Sovereign, winner of the Gimcrack Stakes at York.

If I were a gambler I would have backed those two winners for sentimental reasons—but, then, I'm not.

Watching the rehearsal of "The Golden Sovereign" at the Gate might have been taken as an omen. As it is, the win of Golden Sovereign at York is really a very good omen for Ireland; for he is the colt by Monarch out of Fleche d'Or, bred by Lord Fingall, and sold at the Horse Show Sales a year ago for a top figure. A top figure for Dublin, no doubt, yet really a bargain for his present owner at 2,700 guineas.

Actually the Gimcrack Stakes are named after the smallest horse that ever won at York—he was named Gimcrack and was only about 14 hands. Traditions are always solidly maintained in English racing, and one of them is that the winning owner of the Gimcrack must attend the commemorative dinner in December as chief guest. His speech is eagerly anticipated. Last year the race was won by M. Marcel Boussac, but he had to apologise for not being able to speak English. Sir Abe Bailey has already won the race three times.

District Justice Little

District Justice Little, who was prominently in the news this week as the champion of the Free State Industrial School regimé, is a member of an interesting Irish family. He is an elder brother, by the way, of Mr. P. J. Little, who represents Waterford in the Dail, and is Parliamentary Secretary to President de Valera.

Their father, the late P. J. Little, was one time Premier of Newfoundland, and was later associated with Parnell in the National movement. He and his family settled at Dundrum. District Justice Little—a barrister—was one of the first District Justices appointed by the Cosgrave Administration.

As a lawyer he seems to have few superiors. A litigant or a delinquent can always, it is said, rely upon having the law administered impartially by E. J. Little. Yet, he is not just a merciless Solomon—or, at least, so it is said.

Mr. Little plays golf, and golf makes all the world akin!

FILM NOTES

HOLLYWOOD'S THREE-IN-ONE SHOWS

Variety, Cinema, and Music Linked : Extravagant Spectacles Padded with "Turns" : Turning from the Theatre

BY A. E. M.

An audience looking at such a film as "Gold Diggers of 1937" may be impressed with some of the changes which have been introduced by the producers of the series since it was first presented some four years ago. When the first "Gold Diggers" film was made it was the easiest thing in the world for a film producer to adopt the methods of the stage, and to make a film packed with extravagant spectacular effects and padded liberally with musical and variety "turns." Very quickly Hollywood made the interesting discovery that it had almost killed musical comedy and vaudeville in the theatre, and had established a virtual monopoly in the music-and-girls type of entertainment.

Then Hollywood dared to attempt innovations, and to bring to the screen something distinctively its own. The results of years of cinematic tradition, of experiment and expenditure, came to the fore, and, instead of presenting its music and its girls in the accepted manner of the theatre, film directors began to employ some of the technique which had been evolved in the days of the silent film. It was remembered, in fact, that the camera could take moving pictures as well as spectacular thrills.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE, in "Stowaway," at the Metropole.

The Mobile Camera

Suddenly the new type of film made its appearance in the world's cinemas. The full capacity of the mobile camera was used to vary and embellish the revue; comedy was written specially to fit the theme of the picture, instead of being lifted bodily from a vaudeville show; stories were written to use the screen's greater scope, including the fact that the location might be varied to an almost unlimited extent. New personalities, many borrowed from that latest of entertainments, the wireless broadcast, came into prominence to release the cinema from the limiting shackles of the variety stage.

Probably the greatest achievement to be noted is the return to the qualities which gave the silent films their distinctive place in entertainment—at least when they neared their end. These were qualities of movement which extended the scope of the scenarist; qualities which are of the utmost importance if the cinema is ever to become an art-form in its own right, and without allegiance to the stage.

Lost Appeal

The single and two-reel musical shorts which Hollywood began to issue when the vaudeville entertainment showed signs of collapse in America clearly indicated that the screen could never hope to appeal on that old basis. Film audiences desired action, movement and life—all three of which they received from Charlie Chaplin and Walt Disney. These attributes are not to be obtained by having a large number of prettily, or even scantily, garbed young ladies prance in rows before an immobile camera to the rhythm of tenth-rate music. Such films could never compensate theatre-goers for lost musical comedy, revue and vaudeville, which, after all, was the entertainment of millions of people not so very long ago.

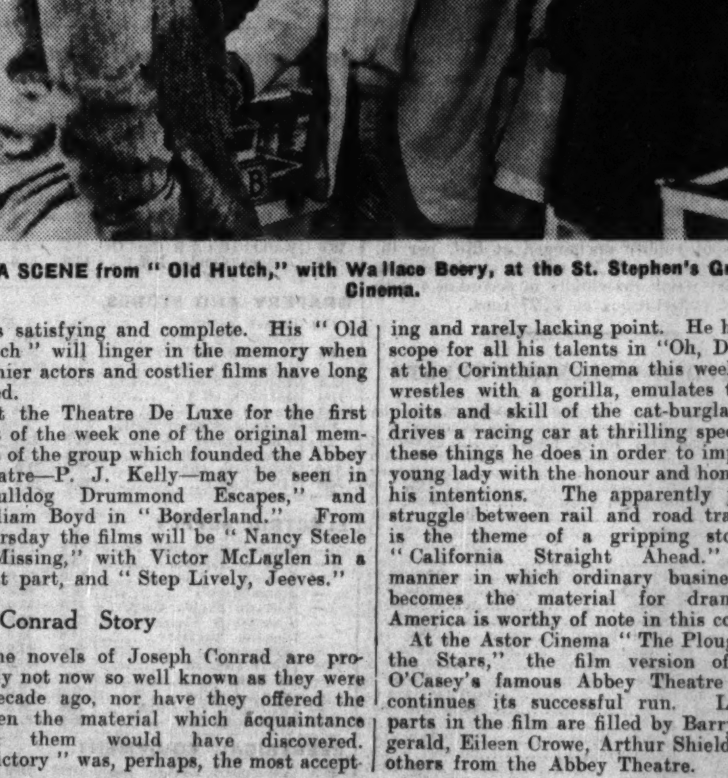

Now these people can have in the cinema variety, the musical show and the motion picture, all rolled into one. It is a development that Hollywood will certainly exploit to the fullest extent. Something of its possibilities may be seen in "Gold Diggers of 1937," but to see the extent of its development this year we shall have to wait for the latest offerings from the studios. Films like "Artists and Models" and "You Can't Have Everything" are said by New York critics to mark a new development in this form of entertainment.

The Thing Happens

Now that the change has been brought about it is fairly easy to trace its development. Without pausing to consider which was cause and which effect, it is a fact that the motion picture entered the musical comedy field at a moment when that form of entertainment was in a dying condition, and vaudeville had almost passed from the stage. Both forms of entertainment have since shown an unexpected vitality in these countries, and it is possible that they will be able to hold their diminished territory against further encroachment by the cinema. In the United States they are both practically extinct, outside a few large cities and in the broadcast programmes, so that the cinema has a clear field in the greater part of the country. When Hollywood came to make films to replace these forms of entertainment the easiest way was to adopt the methods of its predecessors, and thus the first makers of film musical comedy simply photographed stage shows with more lavish spectacular effects, more, and wilder, dancing; larger choruses and more gorgeous settings. Not for a moment did it occur to the makers of these films that in their hands they had an instrument which could make lavish stage shows look tawdry and drab, and present stage dancing and chorus work as without vivacity or vitality.

Wallace Beery

A man who makes fishing—or should it be angling?—his business, his hobby and his recreation—a man who is the very incarnation of laziness—such is the character offered by Wallace Beery in "Old Hutch," at the Stephen's Green Cinema this week. The character might have come from a Boucicault comedy, or from Lover, and it has all the attractive qualities which those authors might have imparted to it. In his own inimitable way Wallace Beery creates the character of wandering angler; now with a glance of an expressive eye, then with a lazy stretch of an arm, and again with the boyish kick at nothing in particular. In this manner does Wallace Beery convey all the people he has portrayed on the screen, whether it be a Mexican bandit of a character from Longfellow; and in its every manifestation it is satisfying and complete. His "Old Hutch" will linger in the memory when flashier actors and costlier films have long faded.

A SCENE from "Old Hutch," with Wallace Beery, at the St. Stephen's Green Cinema.

At the Theatre De Luxe for the first part of the week one of the original members of the group which founded the Abbey Theatre—P. J. Kelly—may be seen in "Bulldog Drummond Escapes," and William Boyd in "Borderland." From Thursday the films will be "Nancy Steele is Missing," with Victor McLaglen in a great part, and "Step Lively, Jeeves."

A Conrad Story

The novels of Joseph Conrad are probably not now so well known as they were a decade ago, nor have they offered the screen the material which acquaintance with them would have discovered. "Victory" was, perhaps, the most acceptable screen version of a Conrad novel, although "Lord Jim" or "Typhoon" would have made more acceptable films. At the Grafton Picture House this week is a film made from "The Secret Agent." If "Sabotage" is not all Conrad, it is certainly a most thrilling film and excellent entertainment. Sylvia Sidney's Mrs. Verloc is one of the finest things this actress has yet done, and John Loder's detective is also a fine piece of screen acting. "Sabotage," although its advance publicity would not suggest any such thing, is a good specimen of the transference of Conrad's subtlety to the screen. The thousands who know their Conrad will hasten to enjoy the film.

At the Capitol Theatre Norma Shearer and Leslie Howard will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet." Those who failed to see this film version of Shakespeare's famous tragedy when it was at the Astor Cinema should not miss it now. For John Barrymore's recital of the Queen Mab speech alone the film is well worth seeing.

In China Now

Shirley Temple's latest exploit, as seen at the Metropole Cinema this week, is to go Chinese and sing songs in that language. She is Ching-Ching, the adopted daughter of a missionary in "Stowaway." The missionary had been killed in a rebel raid upon his mission-house, and she enters upon a new phase of life by stowing away in the car of a millionaire who is touring the world in an effort to banish boredom. She is, as always, the angel-child who reconciles opposing forces and makes the whole world smile again. There is no necessity to commend Shirley, but Alice Faye might be noted by the discerning. The supporting film at the Metropole is "Off to the Races," another adventure of the Jones family, with the delightful Slim Summerville joining in the fun.

At the Grand Central Cinema the film in which Donn Byrne's "Destiny Bay," and some short stories have been combined to make a most delightful entertainment, is the principal item in this week's programme. "Wings of the Morning" is acceptable for its story, set mainly in Ireland; but it is more acceptable for the captivating personality of the famous French actress, Annabella, who takes the leading part. In colour, and with John McCormack singing a group of familiar songs, "Wings of the Morning" is one of the films that will mark a phase in the history of the screen.

Gold Diggers

At the Savoy Cinema "Gold Diggers of 1937" breaks away from the tradition of the series—which began in 1933—by having a story which is an integral part of the picture, rather than an unwilling imposition upon it. It is original, too, in not being primarily a theatrical story, but in having salesmanship as its theme. The story develops steadily, and the singing and dancing interludes fit perfectly into the scheme. With music, dancing and humour, "Gold Diggers of 1937" is good entertainment.

Edward Everett Horton is one of the most acceptable personalities of the screen; one whose humour is always pleasing and rarely lacking point. He has fine scope for all his talents in "Oh, Doctor," at the Corinthian Cinema this week. He wrestles with a gorilla, emulates the exploits and skill of the cat-burglar, and drives a racing car at thrilling speed. All these things he does in order to impress a young lady with the honour and honesty of his intentions. The apparently prosaic struggle between rail and road transport is the theme of a gripping story in "California Straight Ahead." The manner in which ordinary business life becomes the material for drama in America is worthy of note in this country.

At the Astor Cinema "The Plough and the Stars," the film version of Sean O'Casey's famous Abbey Theatre play, continues its successful run. Leading parts in the film are filled by Barry Fitzgerald, Eileen Crowe, Arthur Shields, and others from the Abbey Theatre.

This programme includes traditional Irish airs on the violin and pipes, songs and orchestral items. George Sayers (tenor) will be heard, with the Irish Radio Orchestra, at 7.35. M. Weenink, the Netherlands Consul-General, will introduce a programme of Dutch records by a short talk, celebrating the birthday of the Queen of the Netherlands (Radio Athlone, 7.0).

Listeners in Ireland will particularly welcome a broadcast from B.B.C. National at 8 o'clock. It is J. M. Synge's famous Irish comedy, "The Playboy of the Western World." This play was first produced at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, in 1907. For the few who may not be familiar with the play, the action takes place near a village on a wild coast of Mayo. The first part of the play passes on an evening in autumn, and the remainder on the following day. The production is by Hugh Hunt and Henry McMullan. The cast is that of the Abbey Theatre Company. This programme will be repeated to-morrow from London Regional and Northern Ireland at 9.10.

Lovers of burlesque may remember Moore Raymond's "Marmalade Mystery," with music by John Morley, which was broadcast from Birmingham nearly two years ago. The marmalade millionaire is found not merely murdered, but shot, poisoned and stabbed. The whole thing is written entirely in rhyme. The production is by Martyn C. Webster, with Charles Shadwell conducting the B.B.C. Variety Orchestra (London Regional 9.40).

PAINT AND ITS USES

ADDRESS TO ROTARY CLUB

In spite of the eighteen or twenty manufacturers of paints and varnish in the Free State, and in spite of the progress made in this direction, there is still £45,000 worth of paint and varnish being imported yearly into this country.

This was stated by Mr. Gerard Malone in the course of a talk on "Paint and Varnish" at the weekly meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday, Mr. T. A. Grehan (President) in the chair.

Mr. Malone said that the present strong position of the paint and varnish industry in the Irish Free State had been gradually made possible during the last five years, not by monopoly, and not solely because of the amount of protection it received, but equally because of hard work, good materials, and, most important of all, by a gradual change round of public opinion and public confidence. The specialised production of first-class varnishes was first seriously tackled here in 1926—five years before protection was afforded to that commodity. In the following years up to 1932 (when duty on varnish was imposed) the import figures of varnishes dropped consistently from £47,000 in 1926 to £36,000 in 1931, which was evidence that hard work and good material wound find a market.

Mr. Gerard Malone, who lectured on "Paint and Varnish" at yesterday's weekly luncheon of the Dublin Rotary Club.

Colour and decoration, he said, are more and more entering the architect's domain. Paint and varnish are of primary importance in architecture as materials of decoration and protection, facilitating design in colour and construction. Pressure should be brought to bear on all local bodies to maintain buildings under their control in a bright, tasteful manner, and not merely having them "done up" when they are derelict of colour and reeking with dirt.

Our libraries, schools, prisons, and public buildings generally, he said, are sad specimens, indicating a lack of individuality, a lack of originality in everything that should be a civic and national lesson in taste and artistry.

Mr. R. H. Keatinge complimented Mr. Malone (who is a member of the Club, and, therefore, not expecting a vote of thanks) on his contribution.

CHILDREN'S TEA PARTY AT KILLESTER

A most successful tea party and entertainment was held in the Legion Hall, Killester, on Saturday afternoon, for the children of the members of Killester Branch of the Irish National Garden Guild, to which all the orphan children of Killester were invited. Over three hundred children were catered for, and, after enjoying a hearty tea, they indulged in games and other amusements, and when the children were leaving for home each child was given a bag of sweets.

The children, at Captain de Lacy's request, gave three cheers for the people who so kindly sent cakes, buns, sweets, etc.; those who kindly sent subscriptions, and the Artane Band, who played selections of music during the afternoon, which were greatly appreciated.

LEIPZIG FAIR

BRISK TRADE AND BIG ATTENDANCE

At the autumn fair in Leipzig exhibitors have reached a total of 5,500, and foreign exhibitors show an increase on last year's attendance. Foreign buyers reached a total of 6,000, including a number from Ireland, among whom is Mr. Hugo Flinn, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance.

Trade is brisk owing to the increased world-wide demand for raw materials and manufactured goods, and there are many novelties on view especially in the line of household gadgets. A very moderately priced cooling container, for which no ice is required, should prove a good seller for markets where refrigerators are still considered luxuries. Another article is a glove, with a zip fastener pocket in the palm for carrying small articles. Copies of Irish daily newspapers are greatly appreciated by the Irish visitors.

PASSENGERS LANDED FROM FRANCONIA

About fifty passengers were landed from the Cunard-White Star liner, Franconia, at Dublin early yesterday morning. The Right Reverened Monsignor P. P. Crane, V.G., of St. Louis, Mr. Robert Irwin, the well-known baritone, and Mrs. Irwin, were among the number. Mr. Irwin is home on holiday before he resumes a concert tour of the United States.

LONDONDERRY SCENES

PROSECUTIONS FOLLOW

FINES FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DERRY, Monday.

RIOTOUS and disorderly scenes in Derry on the night of 15th August and early the following morning, when a crowd of fifteen hundred had to be dispersed by the police, were described at Londonderry to-day when several young men and boys were charged.

John Ramsay Walker's place; James Lynch, Tyrconnell street, and Hugh McMenamin, of Donegal place, were each fined £1 for riotous behaviour.

Constable Wherry said that he saw a crowd in Bishop street singing, shouting and booing. They were running towards Bishop Gate, and fearing they mig. enter Fountain street, a Protestant district, he and other police turned and went back to guard the street. No attempt was made to go up Fountam street, and the crowd was turned back at the Diamond and then turned down the Long Tower into their own area. The crowd were singing "A Soldier's Song" and shouting "Up, the rebels!" and if a crowd had gathered at Fountain street a serious breach of the peace might have occurred. Stones were thrown at the police. John Ramsay refused to go home. Lynch and McMenamin were members of the crowd.

Ramsay said that he was out for cigarettes, and Lynch said that he was in bed, and McMenamin did not appear.

The Resident Magistrate (Mr. J. O. Long) said that the defendants were in a crowd of hooligans. Had they been responsible people he would have sent them to jail.

Kevin Barrett, Carrigan's lane; James Rigby, Sloan's terrace; John Doherty, Sloan's terrace, were fined 5s. for being disorderly, and three boys were fined 3s. on a similar charge.

THE SONGS

Constable Armstrong said that the youths were in a crowd who were singing "Derry Walls," "God Bless Our Pope," and "God Save the King"—(laughter)—near the Customs hut at the border.

Thomas McLaughlin, Lecky road; Leo Fitzpatrick, Morrison's Close; Patrick McCourt, Wellington street, and Charles Cassidy, Fahan street, were fined £1 each for disorderly behaviour on the same night.

It was stated that Fitzpatrick headed a crowd of 1,500 playing an accordion. The other defendants were in the crowd.

Defendants said they were out for a bit of sport.

Disorderly behaviour on the Letterkenny road, near Londonderry, was the cause of summonses against five young men—George Cullen, John Wilson, Patrick Rafferty, Charles Slevin and John Moore—all of Bishop street.

Constable Armstrong said that the defendants were jostling each other, and pedestrians had to get off the footpath.

Rafferty, who did not appear, was fined £1, and the others 5s.

A scene on the same road, when a youth was alleged to have dragged a screaming girl by the hair across the road, had a sequel in the prosecution of Michael McCauley, of Braehead, for disorderly behaviour. He was fined £1.

Constable Armstrong said that he heard a girl screaming, and saw the defendant dragging her across the road by the hair. The girl did not complain of injury, but denied that she knew the defendant.

Defendant said that they were lighting cigarettes, and the girl snatched a cigarette out of his mouth. He ran after her and she screamed.

Constable Armstrong said that another girl was running to the girl's aid.

EXPLOSION ON YACHT

GIRL SKIPPER'S LEGS BROKEN

Three people were seriously injured yesterday when the motor yacht Odtaa exploded and burst into flames while being refuelled with petrol in Newhaven Harbour.

Seventy gallons of petrol had just been put into the tanks, when there was an explosion which blew the deck completely out.

The engineer, Mr. A. Beck, who was refuelling, was badly burned about the face, head and neck, and is in a serious condition. The skipper, Miss R. Griffith, of Sloane Mansions, London, fractured both her legs, and was also severely burned, while a passenger, Miss Phipps, of London, is also in a serious condition. All three were taken to a Brighton hospital.

After the first explosion they were attempting to put the flames out, when another explosion occurred, and, despite the efforts of two tugs playing water on the yacht, the vessel was seriously damaged.

The Odtaa, a 44ft. yacht of 21 tons, is owned by Mr. E. C. Strong, of London.

'SHE USED TO BE SO SLIM'

Chance Remark Which Opened Nurse's Eyes

Lost 29 lbs. of Fat by Taking Kruschen Salts

It is often a chance remark that makes a woman realise that she is putting on weight. Nurse N.C. heard the Matron say she was looking middle-aged and plump—and it opened her eyes. In the following letter she tells how she got rid of that unwanted fat:—

"I am a nurse, and did not notice how I was putting on flesh until I overheard a remark passed by Matron: 'Isn't Sister looking middle-aged and plump, and she used to be so slim.' I determined to try Kruschen, and for the last four months I have steadily lost weight. When I weighed myself after that chance remark, I was 10 stone 8 lbs.: I am 5 ft. 4 in., so you see I was much overweight. I weighed myself each week, and I now weigh 8 stone 7 lbs. I did not diet or do any special exercises; just kept on ordinary food. I shall never be without Kruschen."—(Nurse) N.C.

BALBRIGGAN HARBOUR

DIRTY AND A LOSS TO DOCKS BOARD

CO. COUNCIL ASKS MORE PAY FOR GUARDS

A RESOLUTION from the Balbriggan Fianna Fail Club asking that the control of Balbriggan Harbour be transferred from the Dublin Port and Docks Board to the Dublin County Council was read at yesterday's meeting of the Dublin County Council.

The Chairman, Mr. P. Belton, stated that Mr. P. J. Fogarty, T.D., was now in a position to bring the matter up in the proper place, which was the Dail, and he would have the advantage of being on the same side of the House as Mr. Hugo Flinn, who was in charge of the Board of Works, and was, therefore, responsible for the condition of the harbour. The day that Mr. Flinn gave the assistance that the British gave the harbour would be clean. The British lent a dredger to clean the place, but the Board of Works, under Mr. Flinn, refused that help. The entire revenue from the harbour would not pay for the dredging of it. The place was full of filth, and was a danger to the public health.

Mr. Fogarty said that he had since heard that the Port and Docks Board would be glad to get rid of the responsibility for Balbriggan Harbour, which had caused him to re-examine his conscience.

LOSS TO DOCKS BOARD

Mr. Belton said that the harbour was a loss to the Port and Docks Board. There would be a loss of hundreds a year on it if the Council took it over. Out of the dues a harbourmaster had to be paid and the lights on the harbour maintained

It was agreed to receive a deputation from Balbriggan on the question.

A resolution from the Sligo County Council calling for the abolition of the Appointments Commissioners was received. It was stated that the Dublin County Council already had passed a resolution of its own to the same effect.

The Council unanimously passed a resolution calling on the Government to give early and favourable consideration to the claims of the Garda representative body for a restoration of the "cuts" in the pay and allowances of the members, as the present pay and allowances were totally inadequate to maintain that standard of decent living which was expected from the members of the force.

BIG FAMILIES

Mr. J. Tunney, who proposed the motion, said that at the time of the "cuts" in 1925 the Guards were young men who had just joined the force. Now ninety-five per cent. of them were married men with an average of five children, which made the position entirely different. There was very little chance of promotion, and nearly every Act passed by the Dail fell on them for enforcement.

Mr. W. Rollins seconded. The Guards, he said, were their own. They were men who were called upon to risk their lives first in many emergencies. The Guards had to keep up a certain standard of living, and it was unfair that these "cuts" should not be restored.

Mr. J. J. Clare said that the Guards were "under-dogs," and that was why he supported the resolution. He compared the treatment of the Guards with that of the higher ranks in the force.

Mr. P. Belton (chairman) said that he would support the resolution, but he did not agree that Mr. Clare's comparison was accurate.

Mr. P. Fogarty characterised the resolution as a waste of time. All T.D.'s knew of the Guards' grievances. Conditions for police were worse in the past. He knew, because he was bred in a police station. The matter would be discussed in the proper place.

A number of other members also supported the motion.

CROWNING AN ISLAND KING

INTERESTING BROADCAST BY "JOHN BRENNAN"

An enjoyable item broadcast from Radio Athlone last night was the reconstruction of the old Irish custom of crowning the King of Dalkey Island. As was pointed out by "John Brennan," the well-known writer, who was responsible for the production, this mock Kingdom of Dalkey was set up by some Dublin wits in the eighteenth century, having its beginning as a convivial gathering. In the years before 1800 it took the form of a satire on the Government and on the events of the period.

In last night's sketch the scene was laid on the island as it might well have been in the year 1797, when John Philpot Curran and other famous politicians and wits wrote speeches, sermons and songs for the ceremony. Much of the material used over the wireless last night was actually adapted by "John Brennan" from that which was used in 1797. From the commentator was heard a description of the crowds gathering on the island—many coming from the city by sea, others being taken across from Dalkey itself on boats, the old practice of the boatmen being to take all-comers across free, but to charge them "a thirteen"—an Irish coin value a shilling and a penny—on leaving the island, a fine, as they said, for deserting from His Majesty.

KING FOR TEN YEARS

The drive by road in chaises and "noddies" was also described with colour, and there was given also a glowing description of the arrival of the "King of the Island" in the Royal barge from George's quay, escorted by a fleet of small vessels. The King on the occasion was one Stephen Armitage, who had been for ten years crowned King of Dalkey Island—a tribute of his popularity.

The ceremony was performed in interesting fashion, the speech-making being cleverly carried through, while the jovial atmosphere was reflected by the introduction of a number of songs such as "Limerick Races," "Has sorrow thy young days shaded?" (sung by the "rising young poet, Tom Moore," one of the large gathering), "The Jug of Punch" and "The Bay of Biscay," which was a very popular song of the period.

Mr. Liam MacRéamoinn showed his versatility by speaking the lines of seven different characters, the voice-change being well effected, while the author, "John Brennan," also carried several parts well.

BROADCASTING OF PLAYS

HOPES FOR THE FUTURE

OPPORTUNITIES BY THE ABBEY COMPANY

FURTHER opportunities of broadcasting from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, will be occasioned by what is described as the "intensive" programme of productions to be undertaken by Mr. Hugh Hunt during the absence of the senior Abbey company on tour in America.

Broadcasting from the Abbey has been done in the past with satisfaction to the Abbey Theatre.

Although during the past six months none of the new plays was broadcast, that fact does not mean a cessation of the broadcasting of Abbey productions. The theatre authorities stated yesterday that 2 RN always have dealt courteously and generously with them, and it was hoped that, as suitable occasions arise, Radio Athlone will give the public broadcasts from the theatre.

Interviewed yesterday, an official at the Dublin studio said that a whole season of Abbey plays—numbering about six or seven in all—had been broadcast last winter. No arrangements for the coming season had been entered into; for he understood that the Abbey No. 1 Company would be touring America. Four or five of the Gate Theatre company's plays had also been broadcast. The authorities, he emphasised, wished to broadcast plays by the Gate and Abbey companies; they constantly had done so, and "we should like to continue to give the Irish listeners as many of the plays as we can broadcast in the future." It was, he added, of course, only possible for the Abbey players to broadcast on Sunday nights.

AMERICA TO SEE NEW PLAYS

EXTENSIVE TOUR ARRANGED

The American tour of the Abbey Players will begin in the Ambassador's Theatre, New York, when it is possible that Teresa Deevy's "Katie Roche" will be the first production. The company will leave Dublin on September 18th next.

Mr. F. R. Higgins, Director of the National Theatre Society, who will be in charge of the company on tour, said yesterday that they would be away for not less than three months and travel widely in the States, among other places, probably visiting Chicago, Boston and San Francisco, where on the last occasion the company achieved so great a success, as, indeed, was done everywhere.

The programme of productions is not limited to that already arranged, and more than likely will be expanded as occasion calls. Already it is very representative of the Abbey genre in drama, including plays by Teresa Deevy, Synge, Seán O'Casey, Lennox Robinson, George Shiels, Paul V. O'Carroll, C. O'Daly, Frank O'Connor, and several of the notable one-act plays.

Mr. Higgins said that during the absence of t' touring players "home" players would carry out a programme of "intensive" productions, one each month, with Mr. Hugh Hunt as producer. Not only new plays are promised, but new playwrights

"We have a new play dealing with Clarence Mangan," said Mr. Higgins. "It is entitled 'The Man in the Cloak,' and is by Louis Dalton. It is a four-act drama treating of Dublin life in Mangan's days in a rich and colloquial way. The play is full of comedy, and is a very fine interpretation of Mangan and some of his contemporaries."

KING'S CUP AIR RACE

ARRANGEMENTS AT BALDONNEL

The public will be admitted free of charge at Baldonnel aerodrome, County Dublin, when the competitors in the King's Cup air race land there on 10th September and take off again the following day. There will, however, be a charge for the parking of motor vehicles.

On the first day of the race the competitors will follow a course in England, cross the Irish Sea from Portpatrick to Newtownards, and reach the final control at Baldonnel in the afternoon. There will be a thirty minutes' stop at Newtownards, and the night will be spent in Dublin.

The first competitor is due to reach the Dublin aerodrome at 2.16 p.m on the 10th of September, and others will be arriving for the next two or three hours.

Taking off for the second day's flight will commence at 11.30 a.m. and continue for a few hours, each 'plane being despatched according to its handicap.

The Irish Aero Club, which is in charge of the arrangements in the Irish Free State, is organising a 'bus service from Dublin to the aerodrome. It hopes to fix an inclusive return fare, covering the parking charge for the 'bus at the aerodrome, of 2s. 6d. per person.

Special plans are being made for dealing with the traffic to Baldounel, which is likely to be exceptionally heavy on the days of the race.

One Irish woman competitor is entered for the race in the person of Miss L. Dill-n. For some time there was a doubt as to whether or not she would compete, but latest news is that she will start.

A slight fire in Duncrue street, Belfast, yesterday, in which a horse-drawn lorry was involved, was speedily dealt with by the fire brigade.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE PARIS EXHIBITION AND IRELAND

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Thomas Bodkin's letter in your issue of 28th inst. has called public attention to the humiliation of Ireland by its absence from the International Exhibition at Paris. The matter should not be allowed to end with a solitary protest; for it is serious from a national, cultural and economic point of view.

A French newspaper recently pointed out that, while nearly every nation in the world had answered the call of the promoters of the Exhibition, the only countries in Europe which had failed to co-operate (excluding the microscopic Andorra and San Marino) were Ireland and Iceland!

A great opportunity appears to have been lost by some gigantic blundering or indolence somewhere, and this has—so far—been covered up by an amazing public apathy, which bodes ill for the future progress of this country. Are we, after all, but ignorant and beggarly barbarians to stand churlishly aloof from this friendly gathering of the nations in the capital of European civilisation?

Ireland appears to have been "let down" badly, and it is to be hoped that the matter will be thoroughly investigated by a committee of inquiry when the Dáil meets. It would be much better, of course, if it could be done now, and meantime the Irish Times might make inquiries and let the public know the causes of this regrettable débâcle. Indeed, a prompt post-mortem might produce resuscitation; for it seems probable that the Paris Exhibition (which is on so vast a scale that it is, I understand, not yet quite completed, will be continued in 1938. So, if the Sean Bhean Bhocht could bestir herself, even after the eleventh hour, she might be welcomed as the Irish Cinderella on her belated appearance at the great international gathering.—Yours, etc.,

HENRY MANGAN.

PARKING IN DUBLIN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—With reference to the motor traffic in Dublin and the congestion of certain parking places and shopping streets, I wonder if it has ever occurred to the business people that they are responsible for most of the trouble. They arrive early in the morning, park their cars for the whole day, and will not even risk moving them at the lunch hour, for fear of not finding their free and handy place when they come back.

The result of all this is that we country shoppers cannot find any parking place available anywhere handy to the main shopping centres, so that we either have to leave our cars a long way off or pull up outside the shop and risk being run in by the Guards.

Why should the majority of the people be expected to carry parcels all over Dublin because a few people are so selfish that they block up the streets and do not think of others?

Personally, I am sure that if the parking boys were asked they could point out certain cars on their beats that spend the whole day in one position, and not only one day, but every day of the week.—Yours, etc.,

HOLMPATRICK.

MAN AND WIFE SHOT DEAD

ANOTHER MAN INJURED

A man and his wife were shot dead and another man narrowly escaped death at Leeds yesterday. Harry Hurlstone (58) and his wife, Annie Frances Hurlstone (52), the parents of four children, were found at their home in Coburg street, Leeds. The woman was lying dead in a basement kitchen and the man, with a revolver in each hand, was dead in an upstairs bedroom. The terrible nature of his injuries indicated that he had placed one of the revolvers in his mouth to fire the shot that killed him. Shortly before the shooting Hurlstone visited a bookmaker named McCann in St. George's terrace and in the middle of a conversation suddenly produced a revolver, aimed it at Mr. McCann's head and pulled the trigger. As the shot was fired Mr. McCann ducked and the bullet whistled by the side of his head, taking a piece out of his left ear.

The four young sons of the couple, aged 13, 10, 7 and 4, were in a back bedroom of the house when the shooting occurred. They were unharmed. Leslie Hurlstone, the eldest of the family, stated that their father took them to breakfast in the bedroom and locked the door. "Later," Leslie said, "my father opened the door and told me to go and fetch the police."

The police state that Hurlstone, who had a criminal record beginning in Australia in 1916, had only recently come out of prison, having served a sentence for stealing six £1 notes from a man at a Rugby League Cup tie.

DISARMING OF POLICEMAN

TWO OTHER MEN CHARGED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

Two more men were returned for trial at the Belfast Custody Court to-day, charged with being concerned in the disarming of Constable Purdy at Dunville Park, Belfast, on the day of the King's visit.

They are Brian Burns, Linden street, Belfast, and Hugh McCloskey, Islandbawn street, Belfast.

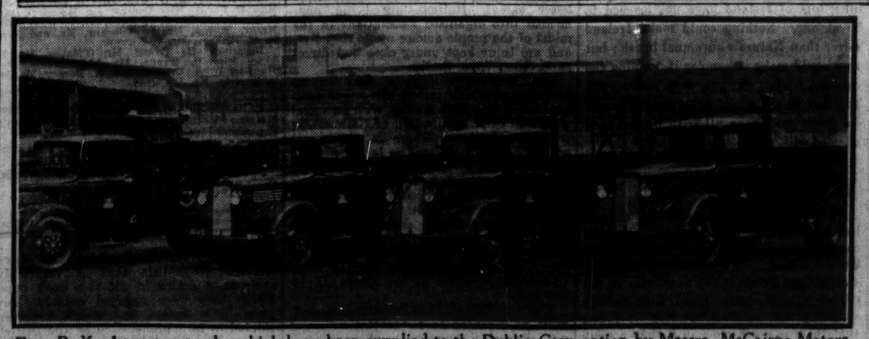

Only one witness gave evidence to-day. He was Patrick McGovern, Andersonstown, who said that about 4.50 on July 28 he was speaking to Constable Purdy at the Munster and Leinster Bank on the Falls road. He saw five men coming round the corner from Waterford street, some of them with revolvers in their hands. They ordered the constable: "Stick them up and get over into the park." One of the men put his revolver against the constable's side. The constable and this man got into grips. The other men crowded round the constable and hustled him across the road. There were four or five men across the road at Dunville Park gate. Witness ran away. He did not know any of the men and could not identify them.

Burns said: "I wish to make it public that this is a frame up."

McCloskey, in answer to the three charges of disarming, having firearms and having explosive substances in his possession, also said: "It is a frame up."

Both men were returned for trial to the Recorder's Court.

SEVEN MEN CHARGED

AEROPLANE PARTS MISSING

ALL THE ACCUSED MEN REMANDED

SEVEN men were charged at Kingston, Surrey, yesterday, with breaking and entering laboratories and stealing aeroengine parts and tools valued at £650.

Referring to certain Press reports that there might be offences under the Official Secrets Act, counsel stated that there was nothing of the kind in the case, which was a very ordinary one of breaking and entering. The seven men were:—Charles Phillips (35), house demolisher; Leonard Gage (27), carpenter; Albert Finley (24), labourer; Henry Tidd (22), painter; Percy George Ernest Burgess (21), motor driver; Frederick Horsecroft (20), labourer, and James White (50), metal dealer, who is also charged with receiving.

Mr. Vine, prosecuting, said that a detective called on White, who said that if anything answering to the description of the stolen articles was offered to him he would let the police know. There would be evidence that at this time he was in possession of a considerable part of the stolen goods.

PROPERTY FOUND

Police officers visited Phillips's house and found some of the laboratory property.

Phillips denied that he had seen it before. Gage said: "Now you have found it I suppose we shall have to stand for it."

Tidd said: "Somebody's put the squeak in for us."

Just before leaving the house Phillips told his wife: "I expect you will be two years older next time I see you."

In White's cellar were found four sacks containing a large quantity of new engine parts.

These articles, which formed the bulk of the stolen goods, and were valued at about £550, White declared that he had bought for £7 odd from someone he had never seen before.

Detective Inspector Reynolds gave evidence that he found engine parts at Phillips's home and in White's cellar.

Mr. Vine said that there would be other charges against the men.

With the exception of White, who was allowed bail, all the accused men were remanded in custody until Tuesday next.

The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Limerick (the Right Rev. Dr. King Irwin).

The bride wore a beautiful gown of beauté satin, with a pearl headdress, which held her veil. She carried white lilies. She was given away by her uncle, Captain Caulfield, late of Copsewood, Pallaskenry.

HOWTH ROAD COLLISION

INQUEST ADJOURNED

After evidence of identification and medical evidence had been tendered, an inquest on two young Dublin men who were fatally injured on the main Dublin-Howth road on Saturday evening last, was adjourned sine die in the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, Dublin, yesterday.

Opening the inquest, the Coroner (Dr. D. A. MacErlean) said that the two men—Patrick Mooney (23½), motor mechanic, Fairview, and Edward Wiggins (24), bookbinder, St. Aidan's Park, Marino—had been travelling towards Howth when a collision occurred between their motor cycle and a motor car driven by Viscount Gormanston, of Gormanston Castle, Gormanston, Co. Meath. The two men were taken to the Mater Hospital, where they later died.

Edward D. Wiggins said that he saw his son laughing, joking and smoking with Mooney at his home half an hour before the accident. Both were perfectly sober.

Francis Mooney said that when he last saw him—on the Tuesday previous to his death—his son did not own a motor cycle.

Mr. C. Gore Grimes, solicitor, for Mooney—Was your son an experienced motor cyclist?—Very much so; he had five years' experience.

Dr. P. Belton, house surgeon, said that Mooney was admitted at 6.35 p.m. on Saturday, and died at 7.10 without regaining consciousness. He had incurred severe head injuries, and died from shock and hæmorrhage following the injuries. Wiggins was admitted at 7.30 p.m., and died at 4.20 a.m. on Sunday, also without regaining consciousness. He died from shock and hæmorrhage following fracture of the skull.

At this stage Superintendent Thomas Walsh (Sutton), for the Civic Guards, said that he had arrived at the scene of the accident a few minutes after it had occurred, and was still making inquiries into its cause. When his inquiries had been completed he intended submitting the papers to the Attorney-General for his instructions regarding criminal proceedings. In the circumstances, he applied for an adjournment.

After the Coroner had granted the adjournment a juror asked: "May we view the body now?"

Coroner—What do you mean by "we"? Do you mean yourself or the members of the jury?

Juror—Myself.

Coroner—If a majority of the jury wish they may view the body, but a single member "No." Does a majority wish to view the body?

A number of other jurors replied "No," and the inquest was adjourned.

MEASURES AGAINST AIR RAIDS

GLASGOW'S SCHEME TO COST £800.000

Glasgow's precautionary measures against air raids (now complete) will cost about £800,000, but the Government is expected to foot the bill. The authorities yesterday showed what an incendiary bomb will do. The demonstration was given in the Fire Brigade headquarters, before a Home Office expert, the chief of the local Air Raids Precautions Committee, fire masters from all over the West of Scotland and a few members of the public.

The City Treasurer (Mr. P. J. Dollan) stated that Glasgow was the only city in the United Kingdom which could claim that it could put its scheme into operation in a month. The Corporation, he said, were asking the Government to pay the entire expenditure, on the plea that the programme was a national service undertaken by the local authority on behalf of the Government.

The death has taken place at the Brigidine Convent, Goresbridge, of Sister Mary Veronica McDonald, in her 105th year, 70 years of which have been spent in religious life. She was a native of Milebush, County Kilkenny.

How France Fares

In all the discussions that have been so widespread recently on the subject of re-armament very little has been heard about France. We have been treated ad nauseam to detailed accounts of the excellence of the German and Italian Armies. We have been told so much about their wonderful aeroplanes, their marvellous pilots, and their vast superiority over everybody else, that their invincibility almost has come to be taken for granted. The totalitarian Powers have well-organised propaganda departments, whose duty it is to convince the world of their strength, and even in Great Britain public opinion almost has been persuaded that only Germany and Italy count in present-day Europe; that the democratic Powers have grown decadent, and that if Signor Mussolini and Hitler should decide to run amok to-morrow they would have matters all their own way. Has everybody forgotten France? Interest is lent to the query by the publication in pamphlet form of a survey of the condition of France's national defences by General Weygand, formerly Chief of the French General Staff and Commander-in-Chief of the Army, under the title, "La France, est elle défendue?" General Weygand probably is the most highly experienced and brilliant staff officer in Europe. He was Marshal Foch's right-hand man during, and immediately after, the World War; it was he who saved the Polish Army when the Russians were almost at the gates of Warsaw, and he has made a close study of military affairs in every country in the world. On the whole, General Weygand's study of the existing situation leads him to the conclusion that the forces at France's disposal are sufficient, both morally and materially, to meet all possible demands that might be made upon them. On the other hand, he takes the view that the uncertainty of the international position, and the fevered activities of the other nations of Europe, make it essential to fill in certain gaps in the French defences, and, above all, to co-ordinate the three fighting Services by the establishment of a real Ministry of Defence.

After the armistice of 1918 France was incomparably the most powerful military nation on earth, just as Britain was the most powerful naval nation. Her one great enemy was vanquished; the age-old threat to her eastern frontier had been removed, apparently for all time, and for the first time in centuries she could look forward to the future without the least anxiety For several years after the War this condition of affairs continued. France not only strengthened her army and her air force; she also secured herself by a series of European alliances which gave her, to all intents and purposes, a military hegemony on the Continent; and for a time she appeared to be so strong that nothing ever could endanger her position among the Powers. Then the totalitarian States began to get busy. France, for all her military might, remained a democratic nation, and her people clung to their passion for personal freedom. While Italy and Germany abandoned themselves to the tender mercies of dictators, the French moved more and more rapidly towards the Left in politics, until finally they entrusted their destinies to the hands of MM. Blum and Chautemps. One of the reforms on which they insisted was the forty-hour week at a time when the Italians and Germans were working between fifty and sixty hours. In these circumstances, it hardly was to expected that the French could maintain the same tempo in their rearmament programmes as their continental neighbours. While the Italians and the Germans were parading through the streets of their chief cities in their coloured shirts waving patriotic flags and giving the Roman salute to their dictators, the French were holding political demonstrations and amusing themselves by "stay-in" strikes. Naturally enough, in these circumstances, France gave the world the impression that she no longer was in a position to defend herself against an outside enemy, and that, if war should break out, her plight would be pretty hopeless. General Weygand's extensive review disposes effectively of that fallacy; for it shows that, although France no longer is supreme in Europe, she is anything but defenceless.

The Maginot line along the eastern frontier is the strongest system of fortifications that ever has been known, but General Weygand does not think that concentration on defence is enough. France must be ready for all emergencies, and must be able to attack as well as defend. She has twenty divisions at present under the colours, and by means of her two years' military service law has been able to make up for a certain deficiency in recruits. She has a virtually inexhaustible reservoir of man-power in North Africa, but this source of strength depends on her ability to keep the sea route open between Marseilles and Morocco—in other words, on her ability to hold the Italian Navy in check. According to General Weygand, the French Navy has been virtually rebuilt since the War, and is a force of which the French people may be proud. On the other hand, the operation of the forty hours week has slowed down construction in the French shipyards, while the Italians have been working overtime, and it is possible that Signor Mussolini at the moment may have a slight superiority in the Mediterranean. The General admits that France has fallen back in the race for supremacy in the air. Britain now has fifteen hundred first line aeroplanes, Italy has eighteen hundred, and Germany three thousand, while France has no more than one thousand. General Weygand points out that an effort is being made to bring this number up to fifteen hundred, that an increased number of "chasers" is being provided, and that, apart from its numbers, the French Air Force has "a remarkable personnel." In the early days of the World War British prisoners and their German captors were inclined to smile at the French soldiers who fell into the hands of the Germans, because they were wearing red trousers and patent leather boots. Not so very long afterwards their brothers-in-arms were smashing the Crown Prince's legions at Verdun. The French are like that. When they seem to be least efficient they are most dangerous. They may make demonstrations in the Place de la Concorde. They even may hoist the "red" flag on occasions, but, when it is a question of France against her enemies, they have only one thought. That is why they cannot be conquered.

Harvest Home

O come at last, to whom the spring-tide's hope
Looked for through blossoms, what hast thou for me?
Green grows the grass upon the dewy slope
Beneath thy gold-hung, grey-leaved apple-tree
Moveless, e'en as the autumn fain would be
That shades its sad eyes from the rising sun
And weeps at eve because the day is done—
Soft-eyed September!

Poets sing much of the spring, but autumn has a richer glory. In harsher lands than Ireland it is natural that spring should be as welcome as release from prison. Long nights in a frost-bound country make the first buds dear to behold, and the softening of the air an intoxication. Whoever has known winter in the Lothians, or in East Anglia, understands the crash of jubilant song with which English and Scottish poets celebrate its passing. In our mild island, where winter has its summery days, and summer, truth to tell, seldom sets into a hot, steady contrast to winter, spring is less exciting. With us, though the blaze of March-time whins is splendid, it is not as if we have been penned to the house, crouched over fires, for months. Spring is but the gradual lengthening of the day. We find a ripe beauty in the autumn which shows Ireland at its best. In the heathery parts the vast carpets of purple are spread in August as if for a royal approach, and now September comes with the gifts of plenty. The scents of harvest fill the air; the crops of the fields are brought in like golden plunder. Over the expanse of stubble evening spreads a mellow mist. Hills and jagged mountains turn to deep-hued, sharp-cut shadows against evening skies that are clear as topaz or amethyst. In the orchards fruit like copper globes weighs down the branches, awaiting the happy gatherers. Soon the pulse of the threshing mill will thud beside the haggards. Out over the moors the boom of the sportsman's gun promises game at table. Across broad baronies the strings of multitudinous rooks heavily wing their way. The turn of the leaf has begun. Soon the woods and the trees that shelter homesteads or shade the ways will be festive in their dying hues, and a journey through, say, the beech-lined road to Poulaphouca will be bewildering in its loveliness. Dusk now comes early, and windows glow in homesteads that are surrounded with satiety. In the towns the lamps are hung in shop windows and the porches of theatres brighten. It is, in truth, a goodly season that begins when the broad September sun shines on Ireland, and sun-burnt faces are turned cheerfully to the winter. Rich and poor, and men of all classes, kinds and allegiances share in the mellow exhilaration with which Nature's cup fills the hearts of men. So it is that in every autumn, when we rejoice to have seen one more year's abundance gathered, the thought comes home more poignantly than ever that one more year is passing and the inheritors of Ireland have not learned to be at one. Nothing could make Ireland fairer than Nature's autumnal brush; but men could make it happier if, valuing their common heritage aright, they would work together to share and enjoy its fruits and its privileges, in an all-Irish brotherhood of good-will.

Colour Schemes

Science marches on, and every day we learn how ignorant we were yesterday. Of course, we had all heard of colour schemes. People who wished to be complimentary talked vaguely about the excellence of the colour scheme, and hoped that nobody would press for details. Now it seems that there is much more in it than a mere question of artistic effect. Experts have been furrowing their brows on the subject, and we learn, with other things, that colour may save an industry from ruin, make the office staff worth double their wages, increase sales and intensify the heat from the radiator. All these years we have been talking about "a brown study" without knowing that we were scientifically correct; to-day the colour psychologists tell us that brown and buff shades assist concentration. We might have guessed that they would suggest orange as a colour that appeals to engaged couples, and green as a suitable tint for boys; but we never should have suspected that a green and white combination—or any other colours, for that matter—would have proved "restful" in a boiler factory. It is really remarkable that the poor, old world should have muddled along through the centuries with wrong colours everywhere, and nobody doing anything about it. Shakespeare and Ben Jonson, and a few of the other lads, did remarkably well in the circumstances; but just think of the masterpieces they might have produced if mine host of the Mermaid had surrounded them with properly stimulating colour schemes. At the same time, it is permissible to wonder whither this colour psychology business is going to lead us. When they have gone farther into the matter, the scientists may insist on different coloured classrooms for different studies—brown for maths., red for geography (in Great Britain), emerald green for Irish (in the Free State), and so on. That is all very well for the schools which, possibly, may be able to rise to the occasion; but what about home lessons? It is sad to think that Bill, or Liam, Johnnie, or Sean, may get their sums all wrong just because the wallpaper in the old homestead is the wrong shade. It seems to us that the only ray of sunshine in such a prospect is that it must inevitably lead to the abolition of home lessons. In the meantime, the interests of suffering humanity demand that an investigation should be made into the use of the wrong colours in public life. It may be that an overdose of green causes an antagonism towards red. Perhaps our pillar-boxes should be whitewashed and our trams and omnibuses repainted a gay scarlet. It might be possible to effect improvements even in Leinster House; we always have had our suspicions of that aggressively Celtic carpet.

"Tayloritis"

London has not witnessed such scenes of mass hysteria for a long time as those associated with the arrival of the Hollywood film "star," Robert Taylor, on Friday last. It had been thought that the hysterical reception given to the late Rudolph Valentino in the dim past could not be surpassed; but last week London beat all its previous efforts. For over an hour before the train which brought the screen idol from Southampton arrived at Waterloo the precincts of the station were thronged by about three thousand women and girls, who patiently, but noisily, awaited the arrival of the hero. The appearance of Mr. Taylor was greeted by piercing screams, which were heard a quarter-mile away over the din of London's traffic, and women tore one another in the struggle to get closer to the object of their adoration. At Southampton the screaming and struggling were only a little less hysterical than in London, and some hundreds of women and girls ran along the railway siding screaming farewells, throwing kisses, and brandishing autograph-books. To escape the embarrassing affection of his "fans," Mr. Taylor had to be escorted by police through subterranean passages and hustled into a taxi-cab, which whisked him away to his hotel. This peculiar manifestation of mass hysteria will be interpreted differently by varying sets of authorities, but it is really not a novel phenomenon. From the earliest times mobs have given manifestations of this kind, and eminent psychologists have set themselves the task of discovering their causes or explaining their effects. The famous Frenchman, Gustave Le Bon, was one of the earliest of these investigators; but, perhaps, a finer light has been thrown upon mass hysteria by the author of "The Instincts of the Herd." Glamour has gone from life, taken away by mechanisation and factory monotony, and only from the cinema is something in substitution for the loss nowadays obtained. People are receiving their bread, but they are clearly missing their circuses. So it is that men like the inoffensive Mr. Robert Taylor, who is a most attractive young man, have to pay the penalty of their popularity by suffering siege by thousands of screaming women. It is the penance exacted for the sins of the publicity man; the reverse side of the tribute which pays a thousand pounds a week.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE STUTTGART CONFERENCE

The Times observes in a leading article to-day:—A Nazi conference of a type to which the world has not yet become accustomed is now being held in Stuttgart. The usual party rally at Nuremberg, well known by now for its annual expression of enthusiastic and aggressive patriotism, will be held in a few days' time, but the gathering which began on Sunday is composed of Germans who reside abroad, and who once a year come home to testify their devotion to the Nazi régime. It is the sixth of its sort, but special importance is given to this year's conference by the presence of so many official personages including the Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath, who delivered a speech on the opening day.

In it he sought to reassure foreign opinion by insisting that members of German organisations abroad were strictly forbidden to interfere in the internal affairs of the country where they resided. It is, nevertheless, a matter of growing disquiet to foreign Governments that Germans living abroad—and, to a lesser extent, Italians—are being regimented into organised associations in the midst of the people among whom they live, and are being kept under close and direct supervision from Berlin.

The meeting will later deal in an atmosphere which is not altogether suitable for so delicate a matter, with technical points in this organisation of Germans in foreign countries. There is a proposal which, however, has not so far been made officially, that three "Cultural Attachés" should be appointed to the more important Embassies and Consulates in foreign countries. It is clearly the desire of the party leaders that they should be accorded diplomatic privileges, and it is proposed that London should have the honour of being the first country to receive these additional members of the Corps Diplomatique.

The compliment, if it is really intended, must be regarded as a doubtful one, and not altogether devoid of embarrassment. The proposal follows so soon after the expulsion from England of the three German journalists that it inevitably suggests a desire to get the work upon which they were engaged outside their journalistic duties, and which was considered to be reprehensible by the British authorities, carried on by persons enjoying the immunities of diplomatic status.

LONDON LETTER

JAPAN'S REPLY

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

A REPLY to the British Note to the Japanese Government regarding the attack on Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen is not yet forthcoming, and in official quarters it is thought that it will be some days before one is sent. The Japanese Government has promised to make inquiries into the affair, but these need not take long in the circumstances, and fulfilment of the promise is not looked for with any great degree of optimism here. Should the Japanese Government fail to do the proper thing further action by the British Government is unlikely, and it will be left for the world to draw its own conclusions as to the respect entertained by Japan for international amenities.

The League Assembly

Mr. Eden (the Foreign Secretary) is to attend the forthcoming meeting of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva, but he will not remain there long, and after a few days his place will be taken by Mr. Walter Elliot. As a matter of fact, the British delegation to the Assembly will be composed mainly of juniors both as regards Ministers and staff, this suggesting that the business to be discussed will not be of the first importance. On the other hand, the French delegation will be of an important character, and it will include the present Premier and two former Premiers, M. Herriot and M. Paul Boncour.

New Flying Boats

The Air Ministry have placed contracts for the first of the 35-ton flying boats for the coming Atlantic service. The boats, of which there will be four or six, will be twice the weight and capacity of the Caledonia and the Cambria, while Pan-American Airways is also building somewhat similar ships. It will be early in 1939 before the boats will be ready for their engines to be fitted, but this is all to the good, as it is expected that a new and powerful engine will then be available, and each boat will have four of these, giving a total of 6,000 horse-power compared with a total of 3,200 horse-power used to drive the Caledonia and the Cambria. It is anticipated that both the British and United States new machines will cruise at 175 miles per hour, thus enabling the ocean crossing to be made in less than twelve hours.

The Recruiting Age

The decision of the War Office, that the age limit for the Army recruit is to be raised from 25 to 28, came as a surprise to recruiting officers generally, as they knew nothing of the change until it was an accomplished fact. The reason given for the raising of the age limit is that many men endeavour to enter the Army when they are really a year or two over the former limit, and it is thought that the new scheme should help considerably to improve the recruiting figures. Much consideration has been given to the plan, which is the result of a review of reports forwarded by some hundreds of recruiting officers. Once the reports had been reviewed no time was lost in reaching a decision, and so quickly was the plan put into operation that few of the departments at the War Office knew anything of it to-day.

Books for Trade Unionists

The General Council of the Trades Union Congress intends to form a company with the idea of issuing books for trade unionists, and the work will commence with a series of cheap reprints. The Trades Union Congress, though it has a membership of over 4,000,000, does not appear to have been very fortunate in its literature, as Sir Walter Citrine's shilling booklet, "A Trade Unionist Looks at Russia," sold only 2,500 copies, while "Labour's New Charter," which dealt with the International Labour Office, reached the record for publication sales with only 13,000 copies. All this is a little surprising, inasmuch as there is a great demand on the part of the public for interesting political tracts and pamphlets. The issue of Left literature has developed very considerably of late, while the Union of Democratic Control reports great sales for all its booklets dealing with pacifist matters.

Airship Development

It is not improbable that there will be a revival of interest in lighter-than-air vessels in this country, since recent developments in Germany have attracted considerable attention in aviation circles. It has been noticed that great improvements in the building of airships at Friedrichshaften are being made, and that the new Zeppelin will be several tons lighter than the Hindenburg. This is due to the possibility that helium gas may be used in future, as the airship will have to be twenty tons lighter in such an event. All superfluous furniture and fittings are being scrapped, and accommodation for passengers will be greatly reduced. A problem which has not yet been overcome is the loss of gas during trips, as on each flight the Hindenburg lost some forty thousand cubic metres of hydrogen by leakage, and, in the event of helium being used, the expense of such a loss would be tremendous.

Business at Olympia

A satisfactory volume of business has been transacted during the national radio exhibition at Olympia, and orders from overseas have shown a substantial increase. British wireless apparatus is steadily finding favour abroad, no fewer than twenty countries being purchasers, while British-made wireless valves go to thirty countries. In spite of severe competition in overseas markets sets made in this country are more than holding their own, and in this connection manufacturers are now producing apparatus suited to particular markets. It has been found that the natives of some countries pay little attention to quality of reproduction, and prefer quantity to quality. For these countries special brightly-coloured sets are being made which give forth a volume of sound that would be unbearable here.

"Radio Priest" in London

London is to have an interesting visit this week, as Father Coughlin, one of the most extraordinary personalities in the United States, will arrive shortly. He is the famous "radio priest," who once swayed millions of people every Sunday with his semi-religious broadcasts, and at one time his influence was so great that he was regarded seriously as a candidate for the Presidency of the United States, though a Canadian by birth. His power and influence declined after the last Presidential election, as he had promised to secure nine million votes for Mr. William Lemke, the candidate of the Union Party, but he received fewer than one million. It is probable, however, that Father Coughlin will resume his broadcasting work on his return to the States in the late autumn.

MR. N. CHAMBERLAIN'S HOLIDAY

The Prime Minister (Mr. Neville Chamberlain) will leave Balmoral to-day for a holiday at Knoydart, the West Highland seat of Lord Brocket (formerly Mr. Hall-Cain, M.P.). He will arrive at Mallaig at 5.30 p.m. and there join Lord Brocket's yacht for the sea voyage of about seven miles to Knoydart.

PROTEST BY WASHINGTON

U.S. LINER BOMBED IN YANGTSE

CHINA ACCEPTS RESPONSIBILITY

IRREGULARS LOOT FRENCH SEMINARY

IT was officially announced last night that China had accepted full responsibility for the bombing of the United States liner President Hoover (21,936 tons), and was ready to make redress.

It was explained that the liner, which was bombed last afternoon by four warplanes while lying off the estuary of the Yangtse River, was mistaken for a Japanese transport.

An earlier message from Nanking, the Chinese capital, had stated that the liner had been accidentally bombed by Chinese 'planes.

The British cruiser Cumberland hastened to the scene to render medical aid.

THE CASUALTIES

Seven of the liner's crew were wounded, two seriously.

The United States Ambassador has been instructed to make a strong protest to China regarding the bombing.

The President Hoover, which was due at Shanghai to-day, carried 257 passengers and 320 crew.

The attack occurred fifty miles from Woosung and twenty miles out from shore on the high seas.

JAPAN ACCUSED

The Cumberland, which was five miles away, picked up a signal from the liner asking for medical assistance, and at once speeded for the spot. As soon as she arrived the ...rship's doctor went on board the line... ...d treated the two seriously injured men.

Later the President Hoover headed for Kobe, Japan, under all steam. She is damaged above the water line.

In addition to the injured crew, three of the passengers are suffering from shock.

The attacking aircraft are stated to have power-dived over the liner before releasing bombs. After the bombing Rear-Admiral Yarnell, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Asiatic Fleet, issued an order that no more American vessels were to call at Shanghai until peace was restored.

Two United States' warships, the destroyers Edsall and Parrott, left Shanghai on hearing of the incident, and returned later. The offices of the Dollar Line, owners of the liner, were inundated with calls from anxious friends and relatives.

SECOND INCIDENT

Following the bombing of the U.S. flag ship Augusta, this is the second serious incident involving a United States' vessel.

Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, United States' Ambassador to China, called at the Foreign Office in Nanking and drew the attention of the Chinese Government to the incident.

Speaking to the Press Association on the telephone from Nanking, Mr. Johnson said that it was customary to inform the Chinese Foreign Office of any incident in China or Chinese waters involving American interests, no matter who else might be involved. The Ambassador added that he was communicating details of the President Hoover incident to Washington.

A few hours before the bombing occurred the President Hoover had reported the disappearance of a passenger, Mr. Norman G. Harris, an American citizen.

Mr. Harris, who is 53 years of age, had recently been evacuated from Shanghai to Manila. He was on his way back in the President Hoover. He is well known in Shanghai as a director of the Yeepsoong Tobacco Company, a concern associated with the British-American Tobacco Company.

CHINA CONFESSES

The Chinese authorities admit that Chinese bombers were responsible for the attack on the President Hoover, says a Nanking telegram. They state that a Chinese scouting aircraft reported that ten Japanese transports had been sighted fifty miles from Shanghai. Bombers were ordered to the scene to attack the transports, but the President Hoover, which was very close, suffered accidental bombing.

The Chinese authorities are investigating the matter it is added.

It is officially announced, says a Reuter Shanghai telegram, that China has accepted full responsibility for the bombing of the President Hoover, and is ready to make redress.

It is explained that the liner was mistaken for a Japanese transport.

According to a late report received in Shanghai the attacking planes dropped seven bombs, one of which damaged the President Hoover.

STRONG PROTEST

Mr. Cordell Hull, the U.S. Secretary of State, has instructed the American Ambassador in Nanking to make a strong protest to the Chinese Government.

In a statement Mr. Hull said: "The bombing is to be very much deplored. It is one of those not entirely unusual incidents that occurs in conditions such as exist in that area."

Mr. Hull added that he was under the impression that American merchant vessels would not call at Shanghai.

Mr. Hull indicated that Admiral Yarnell had relieved the Dollar Lines of the necessity of calling at Shanghai for the time being. The U.S. Navy has sufficient vessels in Chinese waters to evacuate the remaining 200 or 300 Americans who desire to leave Shanghai.

Admiral Yarnell's action applies only to Shanghai and not to other ports in China.

Mr. Hull said that the President Hoover's departure for Kobe was on Admiral Yarnell's orders.

MOBILISATION REPORT

China has ordered general mobilisation of all between the ages of 18 and 45, according to a Nanking telegram.

EYE-WITNESS STORIES

LINER PASSENGERS WATCH ATTACK

Eye-witness stories of the attack on the President Hoover was told by passengers in the Italian liner Conte Verde, which sailed within a mile of the American ship as she was coming into Shanghai yesterday.

One passenger told the Press Association: "The President Hoover was anchored awaiting a tide off the river mouth for Shanghai at about 6 p.m. when she was bombed from the air by three or four machines.

"The 'planes dropped about ten bombs, and scored two direct hits on the after well-deck, causing severe damage. Japanese destroyers were about a mile from the liner at the time of the bombing, but no anti-aircraft fire was observable from them.

"The President Hoover sent out an S.O.S., and the destroyers and H.M.S. Cumberland dashed up."

Mr. A. T. Brennan, the South African Trade Commissioner in South Asia, who was a passenger in the Italian liner, said that they had an anxious time, as they watched the bombing through binoculars.

"We expected that the machines would go for us the next minute," he said, "as at one time they were only half-a-mile away, and they came down repeatedly on the President Hoover.

"None of us could understand what was really happening, as two Japanese destroyers were in the distance, seeming unaware of the bombing until the damage was done."

WOUNDED AMBASSADOR

It was stated yesterday that there is no further anxiety for the wounded British Ambassador (Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen), and no more bulletins will be issued.

AIR ACTIVITY OVER SHANGHAI

TOKYO CLAIMS COAST BLOCKADE EFFECTIVE

Four Chinese aeroplanes tried to bomb the Japanese warships on Sunday (says a Shanghai telegram published in Tokyo). No damage was done to the ships, the despatch adds.

It is alleged that two of the attacking aircraft had the Japanese emblem painted on their wings.

The Japanese Naval Air Force is reported to have carried out a raid on the aerodromes of Hangchow and Kwangteh and bombed them with some effect. Last evening, it is added, Japanese aeroplanes in formation flight carried out a raid on Chapei, the Chinese quarter of Shanghai, and effectively bombed the Chinese positions there.

According to a Shanghai despatch not a single Chinese vessel has been seen off the Chinese coast from the mouth of the Yangtse to Swatow since the Japanese Navy proclaimed the closing of traffic to Chinese shipping over this stretch of coast.

It is claimed that the Chinese military authorities, alarmed at the Japanese advance in Shanghai, are now massing sixteen divisions round the city.

These troops are stated to include forces sent from the Provinces of Honan, Kwangtung and Kwangsi.

Telegrams from Japanese sources in North China state that Manchukuan troops, in co operation with the Japanese forces, have occupied Chih Cheng, an important town in Chahar Province.

According to a despatch from Peiping, the Peace Maintenance Commission has

THE NEW YORK WORLD FAIR

REPRESENTATION OF THE SAORSTAT

NO GOVERNMENT DECISION YET

DUBLIN MAN URGES IMMEDIATE ACTION

"NO definite decision" has been arrived at by the Saorstat Government in regard to the provision of funds for the promotion of Saorstat representation in "The World Fair" that will be opened in 1939 at New York, was the reply given at the Department of External Affairs yesterday, when an inquiry by an "Irish Times" reporter was made as to what action the Government intended to take.

DUBLIN VISITOR'S REPORT

Mr. C. E. Reddin, a member of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, who was deputed to make inquiries in America, has reported by cable to the President and Council of that body in the following terms:—

"Urge Government take immediate steps to secure option on good site World Fair. Matter urgent. Other Governments picking best sites daily. Have visited Fair ground and discussed matter with Minister, Consul General and Fair officials. Inform Federation and Laurie."

At the External Affairs Department yesterday it was said that Government action was "very likely." Nothing further could be elicited in regard to the subject.

PURCHASE OF SITES

It is, in fact, a very big subject. How big may be gathered when it is mentioned that from American sources the statement comes that sites at the Fair have been purchased at the cost of a million dollars, and that Great Britain is prepared to secure location at something near half-a-million dollars. France is doing the thing on the grand scale, and her site will be occupied by an enormous model of the blue riband Atlantic liner, the Normandie.

Two hundred thousand dollars has been mentioned as the possible cost of a site in the Fair ground suitable to the Saorstat.

A FREE STATE PROBLEM

Mr. Peter MacCarthy, President of the Federation of Saorstat Industries, a body representative of Free State manufacturing interests, could not say yesterday that the Federation had made up its mind in regard to the New York World Fair. Some members regard the possible cost of being represented at the Fair as putting the matter "quite out of court." Mr. Grover Whalen, manager of the Fair, is expected in the Free State in the course of the next month, and until Mr. Grover Whalen has been consulted the matter will remain in abeyance. It would appear from members of the Federation that the Saorstat experience at the Chicago Fair has not tended to enthusiasm in regard to the 1939 project.

If the Government put up the money for a site, will there be a sufficient response from Free State actual and prospective exporters to give the Government reasonable recoupment in the way of rents to justify the initial outlay is the problem.

TRADE RELATIONS

The existing trade relations of the Irish Free State with the United States involve a heavy adverse trade balance. The United States sell to this country something under two million pounds worth of goods, and take less than one hundred and fifty thousand pounds worth of Free State manufactures in return. It is suggested that the Saorstat export total could be greatly increased among at least 20,000,000 of the American people on a sentiment-cum-quality basis, if an adequate salesmanship campaign were inaugurated to take advantage of it.

It is further urged that the visible adverse balance is actually compensated for by "Sweep" money and "remittances," and, therefore, that if Free State manufacturers increased their exports there would be a national, as well as individual, profit.

PROMISING EXPERIENCE

Mr. T. F. Laurie, Vice-President of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, who is referred to in Mr. Reddin's cablegram, and who, with Mr. Kevin Kenny, organised the Ship Exhibition in New York Harbour on the first visit of the Anchor liner, California, from Dublin to New York, stated, on his return home that if he had been permitted he could have sold his exhibits twelve times over.

So promising an experience should not be without weight in estimaitng the value of opportunities which the New York International Exposition might offer to Saorstat manufacturers.

FRIGHTENED PONY CAUSES DEATH

CART TUMBLED OVER WEXFORD WALL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNISCORTHY, Monday.

The death occurred early this morning under unusual circumstances of Mrs. Elizabeth Connors (45), wife of James Connors, Castle Ellis, Enniscorthy. She was returning with her sister in a small spring cart from a visit to the house of a friend in Castlesow, Castlebridge, some miles away. At Ballyknocken, Castle Ellis, a bicycle lay at the side of the road. The pony took fright at the sight of the reflector on the bicycle, and, rearing up suddenly, backed over towards the edge of the road, where there was a fall of eight feet. The cart toppled over, and Mrs. Connors was thrown headlong from the falling cart. Death was instantaneous.

Her sister, Miss Katie O'Brien, escaped uninjured.

At the inquest a verdict was returned that death was due to shock and hæmorrhage, resulting from a fracture of the skull, caused by being thrown from a cart.

SIR RONALD LINDSAY HOME

BRITAIN'S U.S. AMBASSADOR

Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador in the United States, arriving at Southampton yesterday, stated that he had come home on leave.

"My visit was planned months ago," he said.

LIFFEY-SALMON

Menaced by New Scheme

EXPERTS' VIEWS ON PROBLEM

Suggested "Pass" at Poulaphouca

SALMON will be non-existent in the River Liffey within two years of the completion of the Poulaphouca hydro-electric scheme, as at present contemplated, declare fishery experts.

They state that the only hope for the salmon fishing, if the scheme is proceeded with, would be the construction of fish "passes," which would enable the salmon to proceed even further up the river than they can go at present.

The Dublin Corporation, in co-operation with the Electricity Supply Board, propose to erect a big dam in the river above the Poulaphouca falls, and thus provide not only a new source of electrical power, but also a more satisfactory water supply for the city. It is a laudable scheme, but despite the assurances of the technical experts that the water flow to the lower reaches of the river will be unaffected, fishermen believe that the quantity of water drawn away to the city by the proposed four-foot main cannot but detract considerably from the normal flow.

FISH "PASSES"

Even under present conditions fish cannot get up the river at low water, and the spawning beds are barely covered. The proposal put forward by the Dublin Board of Fishery Conservators is that fish "passes" should be erected at some of the upper weirs, especially at Poulaphouca, and by this means, even though the river level had fallen, the fish could make their way to the higher reaches which would be unaffected by the scheme.

Heretofore the salmon, except at low water, have been able to travel up the river at will and could leap all "obstacles" as far up as Poulaphouca falls. Here they could go no further owing to the height of the leap, and they bred extensively in the shallows and subsidiary streams for some miles further down.

Should the Corporation and the E.S.B. agree to erect a "pass" at this place, as suggested, the fish could travel up to an entirely new region, and fishing, as a result of the extended breeding grounds, would, in the opinion of experts, be improved by at least 100 per cent.

AUTHORITIES' PLAN

Under the Act providing for the scheme no provision is made for a fish pass at Poulaphouca, but the authorities, in correspondence with the Fishery Conservators, state that they propose to erect an equalising reservoir which will be so regulated as to maintain a uniform flow throughout. They will be held liable, however, to pay compensation for interests damaged by the new scheme, and the Conservators have informed them that if there is any interference with the fisheries, as they are convinced that there will be, they will sue for damages.

As the matter now stands it is confined to a conflict of opinion between the engineering experts and the fishery experts, one holding that the river flow will remain unaltered, and the other that with thousands of gallons of water being drawn off daily for the city supply the river level will be seriously lowered.

100 FISHERMEN AFFECTED

Dr. R. R. Leeper, chairman of the Dublin Board of Fishery Conservators and representative on the Board for over one hundred net fishermen at Ringsend, who depend largely for a livelihood on the fishing, told an Irish Times reporter yesterday that he and his colleagues did not wish to raise any objection to the citizens in general being provided with a better water supply, but he thought every precaution should be taken to prevent the destruction of a valuable fishery. He suggested that the authorities in charge of the scheme would be well advised to consult, not only with engineers, architects and contractors, but also with fishery experts.

He pointed out that, for want of such precautions, the Shannon Scheme had cost thousands of pounds in compensation, and, he added, "they will have to pay for this scheme, too, if they destroy the salmon fishing on the Liffey." There were well over a hundred men, he said, who were dependent on the fishing for a livelihood.

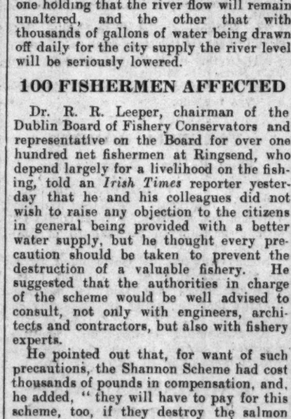

Dr. Leeper expressed the opinion that the proposed fish "passes" would be a solution to the problem, and that not only would they remove the danger to the fishing industry, but they would largely improve it by opening up new salmon-breeding areas.

Mr. D. R. Pack Beresford, another prominent member of the Board, was of the same opinion. "Is it not better," he asked, "to spend a thousand pounds or so now in making salmon passes than to ruin a valuable fishery, and have to compensate the unfortunate net-men for their loss of livelihood?"

He added that he had it on expert authority that if the present scheme were to be continued without the provision of fish passes at Poulaphouca, salmon, so far as the Liffey was concerned, would become extinct within two years.

HIBERNIAN BANK NEW DIRECTOR

Mr. Charles Martin O'Kelly has been co-opted a director of the Hibernian Bank,

PROTEST BY FRANCE

DUCE'S MESSAGE TO FRANCO

CALLED OFFICIAL INTERVENTION

COMMITTEE ASKED TO TAKE ACTION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

THE French Government to-day decided to protest to the Non-Intervention Committee in London against Signor Mussolini's action in exchanging telegrams with General Franco after the insurgent capture of Santander.

It is considered that the Duce's action amounted to official intervention in Spain.

The French Government will urge the Non-Intervention Committee to take the matter up with Signor Mussolini.

The Duce's telegram, which has called forth the protest, was dispatched at the end of last week in reply to a telegram which he received from General Franco. The General spoke of "my pride in having the Italian legionaries under my command."

Signor Mussolini replied:—"I am especially happy that the Italian legionaries have given, during the last ten days' battle, a powerful contribution to the splendid victory of Santander, and that such contribution finds to-day in your telegram a welcome recognition. This intimate fraternity in arms is a guarantee of the final victory, which will deliver Spain and the Mediterranean from all menaces against our common civilisation."

FRENCH CABINET MEETS

To-day's protest from France follows a meeting of the French Cabinet on Saturday, at which, it is understood, the question of the exchange of telegrams was discussed.

Certain leading Socialists are making no secret of their opinion that France should be left free to resume her freedom of action commercially in regard to Spain.

ROME, Monday.

The Tribuna to-day publishes an interview with General Bastico, Commander-in-Chief of the Italian Black Shirt legionaries in Spain. The General praises the valour and resistance of his men, and says he is proud of them.

DESTRUCTION OF SPANISH SHIPS

GOVERNMENT COMPLAINS TO THE LEAGUE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Monday.

The President of the League Council, Señor Quevedo (Ecuador), has decided that it will not be necessary to call an extraordinary session of the Council to consider the complaint of the Spanish Government accusing Italy of responsibility for the destruction of Spanish ships in the Mediterranean.

The matter will be included in the provisional agenda for the session beginning on September 10th.

GENERAL MIAJA ON SANTANDER

ENEMY'S AID FROM ITALY AND GERMANY

LONDON, Monday.

"Under equal conditions we have demonstrated our superiority over the rebels," declared General Miaja, Chief of the Madrid defence, in an interview to-day, quoted by the Spanish Press Agency in a dispatch to Reuter in London.

"The geography of the Northern Front permitted the enemy there to fight with success," he said, "but this does not mean the constant superiority of the rebels in the war. Victory will be ours, even if we must overcome certain temporary difficulties. All the Republicans know this, and the rebels know it, too, although they are counting on their Italian Divisions and their technicians—mainly German."

General Miaja added that nothing of importance had occurred during the morning on the Centre Front.

A Reuter message from Ottawa states that the Duchess of Atholl has appealed to Mr. Mackenzie King, the Canadian Prime Minister, asking the Canadian Government to unite with the other Dominions and the United States in an appeal to General Franco on behalf of non-combatant civilians in Spain.

NO ARMS FROM GERMANY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

The armaments which German trading ships are forbidden to carry to Spanish waters are announced by the official German Agency to-night.

They are—Rifles, machine-guns, revolvers, guns, ammunition, tanks, flame-throwers, grenades, aeroplanes, warships of all kinds, and parts of weapons for munitions.

The order, which is signed by the Reich Foreign Minister, is an addition to the law of April 7th last regulating the traffic of German ships in Spanish ports.

RECOGNITION OF INSURGENTS

MOVES BY VATICAN AND URUGUAY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENTS.

BUENOS AIRES, Monday.

It is understood here that the Uruguayan Government on Friday last addressed a Note to other South American Governments suggesting joint recognition of the Burgos Government.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, Monday.

Well-informed circles here state that Monsignor Ildebrando Antonuitti, who was sent to insurgent Spain by the Pope for the purpose, it was said, of watching over young Basque Catholics, will shortly be appointed Chargé d'Affaires of the Holy See to General Franco's Government.

BERLIN, Monday.

The appointment of Herr von Stohrer as German Ambassador to the Franco Government in Spain, foreshadowed days ago, is to-day officially announced.

HOW LOUIS WON THE BIG FIGHT

ROUND BY ROUND DESCRIPTION

FROM LAWRENCE DE NEUFVILLE, PRESS ASSOCIATION SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT AT THE RINGSIDE, YANKEE STADIUM.

NEW YORK, Monday Evening.

ENCOURAGED by the great improvement in the weather, which had turned clear and warm, a crowd estimated at over 40,000 crammed the Stadium, vast home of the New York Yankees' Baseball team, to about three-quarters of its capacity about an hour before Tommy Farr, British and Empire heavy-weight champion, entered the Ring for the greatest fight of his career—against Joe Louis, the negro holder of the world championship.

However, a large proportion of the crowd were not taking any chances with the weather. Hundreds were armed with umbrellas and mackintoshes with which to protect themselves agains any possible downpour.

1,000 POLICEMEN ON DUTY

There was a large percentage of negroes among the crowd, and in anticipation of racial riots a squad of at least 1,000 policemen were on duty in and around the stadium. Whatever the result of the great black versus white battle, disturbances were sure to follow. Celebrities from all walks of life occupied reserved seats at the ringside.

The Marquess of Queensberry and Sir Noel Curtis Bennett were distinguished visitors from England. The political world was represented by Mayor La Guarda, of New York; Jimmy Walker, former Mayor; Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey; Police Commissioner Valentine, and Postmaster General Mr. James Farley. The stage and screen were represented by such as Douglas Fairbanks, George Raft and Al Jolson. Famous boxing figures were:—James J. Braddock, Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey, Jack Johnson and Max Schmeling, all ex-heavy-weight champions of the world; Marcel Thil, the middle-weight champion of the world; Barney Ross, Lou Ambers and Sixto Escobar, world champions at welter-weight, light-weight and bantam-weight respectively.

Max Schmeling is hoping to be matched with the winner. Promoter Mike Jacobs has offered him a fight on October 12, but, so far, Schmeling has failed to agree to the terms of 12½ per cent. offered.

8 TO 1 AGAINST FARR

When the preliminaries were begun the "gate" was estimated at 240,000 dollars (about £48,000), plus £11,000 from film and broadcasting rights, which made the total within reach of £60,000. Farr's confidence in his ability had brought the odds down from 7 to 1 to 3 to 1 against him yesterday, but the opinion of the experts that his rapid "slimming" after the postponement had taken its toll on his physical resources caused the odds against the British champion to soar rapidly. When he entered the ring odds of 8 to 1 were offered by gamblers at the ringside. However, Farr was not in the least concerned. He has always started out on a fight with the odds against him, and this was just another chance for him to make the critics eat their words.

PRELIMINARY BOUTS

There were some interesting preliminary bouts to work up the enthusiasm of the crowd. In one of them Buddy Baer, who weighed 17st. 5½lb., scored a technical knock-out over Abe Simon, 17st. 12lb., in the third round of a sensational battle of giants. Baer by no means had things all his own way, and in the first round the force of Simon's attack had him hanging on to the ropes, but in the second round Baer connected with a "hay-making" right that put Simon almost out on his feet. After Simon had been knocked down in the third round the referee stopped the bout.

In another contest Harry Balsamo, the "belting brakesman," gained a technical knock-out victory over Chris Derosa, of Boston, after only 2 mins. 32 secs. in the first round. Balsamo scaled 11st. 11lb., and his opponent 11st. 12½lb.

Just before Louis and Farr made their appearance word reached the stadium that the Harlem police force had been tripled as a precaution against racial disturbances. About 1,200 officers were assigned, including 200 detectives and patrolmen.

Farr, attired in a brown dressing gown with the Welsh dragon emblazoned on the back, was the first to enter the arena. He was escorted by six policemen, and was greeted with a terrific roar of applause. The hundreds of Welshmen who had come from all parts of the United States did their best to encourage their idol by lustily singing "Land of my Fathers."

ROUND ONE

After the usual preliminary spar, Farr opened the proceedings with a left to the body. Farr, grim-faced, with chin tucked well down into his left shoulder, opened up another attack, in which he scored with a fine left. He continued to make the fighting, and once more he rushed in and punched away with both fists in a curious bout of punching.

It was obvious that Farr's intention was to keep Louis moving. He did not intend to allow the negro to get positioned to let out his murderous left. Farr again went in and narrowly missed Louis's chin. The negro retaliated by shooting out his left aimlessly. Farr nipped in quickly, and scored with a one-two punch to the head and body, and Louis replied with a left to the face. The British champion refused to let up for a moment, and in he rushed Merman Comes Ashore?

Prowling At Night For Food

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CLIFDEN, Monday.

VISITORS have been coming to Renvyle in unusually large numbers in the hope of catching a glimpse of the famous "merman," but there is one section of the community which never wants to see him again—the local fishing folk.

There is a deeprooted local tradition that a person who sees a mermaid or merman is doomed to die within a year, and it looked as if this belief was going to be confirmed when one of the men who first saw the creature developed a severe illness afterwards. Happily, he refuses to conform with tradition and is now recovering.

If this belief were true one shudders to think of the mortality among the crowds of tourists who have been waiting to photograph the merman should he consent to have his picture taken.

EYE-WITNESSES

In addition to Thomas O'Toole and Michael Ward, it now transpires that two Letterbeg fishermen, Martin Heanue and Michael Regan, saw an uncanny "something" like the merman in Ballinakill Bay about eight months ago.

Two men living on the opposite side of the bay also claim to have seen the merman recently, and old folk have resurrected a story about a merman who frequented an inlet at Letter Head about forty years ago. They say that Mr. Laurence Henry, son of a former owner of Kylemore Abbey, covered the merman with a rifle and would have shot him but for the supplications of his boatman. Mr. Henry is now resident in England.

NOISES AT NIGHT

When I visited the district to-day I found not the slightest doubt among the fishing community as to the existence of the merman. One family living in a house scarcely above high-water mark told me that they had been "haunted" for months past by eerie noises in the night as if "something" was prowling about in the darkness outside.

They added that their dog, which is usually aggressive towards strangers, whined in a frightened way and crept under the kitchen table when the noises commenced each night.

This family is convinced that the noises are caused by the merman hunting for food, a local sage having stated that this strange creature must come ashore for food—presumably a change of diet—at intervals.

MOTOR BOAT VOYAGE

FAROE ISLANDER'S ADVENTURE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

THORSHAVN, FAROE ISLANDS, Monday.

Sofus Hjoveraa, the native of the Faroe Islands who reached the Faroe Islands nine days ago alone in a small motor boat after a three day voyage from Iceland, hopes to reach Lerwick, in the Shetland Islands, to-morrow.

He left Thorshavn last night.

Boston (U.S.A.) police are keeping a sharp look-out for watch-charm pistols, after an inch long weapon, capable of seriously wounding a person, had been seized. They say that the tiny weapon would pierce a one-inch board at six feet and blow a hole "as big as your hand" in a newspaper.

again to force Louis to the ropes. The negro, however, fought back strongly, and got in some straight lefts, but they lacked sting.

Louis thought he saw an opening for a left hook, but a quick feint by Farr made him miss by a long way. Louis again tried with some snappy lefts to the head, and Farr retaliated with hefty body punches, followed by a tattoo of lefts to the head. Still, Farr relentlessly went after his man, and forced him to retreat under the fierceness of his attack.

It was easily Farr's round.

ROUND TWO

Farr tried to open with his left, but missed. They both fell into a clinch, broke away without any damage being done, and then indulged in some sparring at long range. Farr scored well to the body with both hands, after which they exchanged a series of left jabs.

Louis scored to the face with one such punch, but Farr, who was dancing around like a ballet dancer, leapt away from the force of the blow. He kept moving swiftly. This was obviously part of the secret plans, and he leapt in like lightning with jabs to the head, again landed with a light right, and then missed with another.

Louis then came into his own a little, and jolted Farr's head with a stinging left. Farr soon showed that he was not badly hurt, for he came back to send Louis against the ropes with a fierce two-fisted attack to the mid-ribs.

Louis, however, gave punch for punch, and landed with another of his hard lefts, but Farr replied by planting several lefts in his opponent's face, and finished the round with a hard right to the body.

He again took the honours.

ROUND THREE

It was Farr who again started the offensive in this session with a right hook to the head, and then, going into a clinch, got in several light blows to the body, followed by a hefty right, which caught Louis on the side of the head.

He repeated this blow, but Louis countered with a fine right to the head. Louis thought he saw another opening for a knock-out, and he tried with a terrific right to the head, but Farr, who was bobbing and weaving cleverly, made him miss by a wide margin.

Farr repeatedly circled out of distance of Louis's deadly left, and the negro was given few opportunities of bringing it into action. Jabbing constantly and peppering Louis's face with light lefts, Farr appeared to be getting the negro worried. With what seemed a little like desperation, Louis jumped in and landed two swift left jabs, followed by a series of rights. Louis, finding this method of attack successful, again moved in and jabbed away swiftly at Farr's face. This treatment caused Farr to retreat gradually, but towards the end of the round he again went into his man, and caught him with a hard, short left, followed by a right to the head. At this point Farr's right eye was bleeding, but it was difficult to see if it was the old injury that had been re-opened.

ROUND FOUR

Louis began by scoring with a left to the face, but Farr countered with a left hook, and then a tattoo to Louis's head. It was now Louis who was doing all the forcing. He worked Farr into a corner, but Farr, revealing his splendid ringcraft, manœuvred himself out of danger. Farr rushed in with a right hook to the head, but Louis retaliated by jerking back Farr's head with a similar blow. Farr tried a right, but Louis swept it aside, and "pecked" Farr's face with some lefts. Louis led with a left jab, but Farr countered this by shooting out a piston like left to the nose.

Louis continued to beat a tattoo on Farr's face with his left hand. Farr tried a right hook, missed badly, but followed up with a hard right to the head. Louis was now continually moving in, and backed Farr against the ropes, where he missed with a heavy right hook. Farr countered with a bombardment to the body, and turned the tables by forcing Louis to the ropes, but the negro finished the round with honours in his favour.

ROUND FIVE

Louis pecked at Farr's face with a left, and Farr replied in kind. An exchange of blows from long range followed, and Farr got in a right to the head. Louis poked another left to the face, and Farr, trying to attack, was beaten back. The pace of fighting had naturally slackened down a lot at this point, and the crowd impatiently clapped for action. The boxers, however, continued to exchange the lightest of blows, but later Farr landed with a stinging right to Louis's head. Louis replied with a terrific right, which shook Farr. The latter fought back savagely, and, bobbing and weaving, landed with a right swing to the head. Louis was still eager to force the pace, however, and he again walked in with a left hook, but missed with his repeat attempt.

Farr then leapt in and shot out three quick lefts, but Louis, unaffected, scored with a similar blow.

Louis again won the round.

ROUND SIX

Farr's two eyes were bleeding slightly at the end of the fifth round, but he came out strongly enough for the sixth. He scored with a light left to the body, and then drove the negro across the ring, while the crowd roared frantically as he slammed away and scored with an uppercut. Farr's left eye began to bleed again, but this did not stop him attacking. He landed a heavy left hook, and followed up with a stinging jab to the head. Farr again charged forward, and hurt Louis with a powerful left to the body.

A left uppercut followed, after which both exchanged lefts at long distance. Farr, again bobbing and weaving for an opening, saw one, and immediately lashed out a tremendous right, which shook Louis. Not letting up, Tommy got in a series of light lefts to the face, and then avoided Louis's attempts to jab him in the face. Farr was timing perfectly at this stage, and he swung over a powerful right hand, which landed on the top of the negro's head. Another hard right to the body followed, and Farr finished the round attacking furiously.

Farr took the honours.

ROUND SEVEN

Tommy came out of his corner smartly and stuck out some snappy lefts to the face. He continued to score repeatedly with some finely-timed left swings, but the "Bomber," seizing an opening, caught Farr with a couple of left hooks. The men fell into a clinch and they pummelled away to the body, but the force of Farr's attacks compelled Louis to give ground. He backed Louis to the ropes, and shot out both hands to the body quickly, but Louis, fighting desperately, cleared his way out, and landed with two terrific lefts.

Louis got his left hand going perfectly at this point, and Farr did not find it so easy to avoid it. Farr was again bleeding from cuts under both eyes. Louis attempted to force home his advantage, and scored with both hands to the head, forcing Tommy to give ground. Farr's face was now a gory sight, the blood from his eye injuries streaming down his face. He was still full of fight, however, and a last desperate attempt was spoiled by over-eagerness.

Louis's round.

ROUND EIGHT

Louis, sensing that he was gaining the mastery, came smartly out of his corner, eager for the "kill." He got in a light left, but Farr retaliated likewise, and then, feinting cleverly, sent over a right to the face. Farr threw another right, but it went harmlessly over Louis's head. Tommy backed up, and flicked Louis with a one-two punch, driving him to the ropes, where the negro met his attack with two quick left hooks to the head. Louis scored with another left jab, but this stung Farr into action, as he leapt in and landed a stinging left hook to the head. Louis, impassive as ever, walked grimly into his man, again jabbing away relentlessly to the head. After Farr had missed badly with a right, the two men circled around each other in the centre of the ring until Farr caught his man with a stiff right uppercut, and then poured in a ceaseless attack to Louis's body.

Fighting at terrific speed, Farr, with both arms flailing like windmills, forced Louis to the ropes once more, causing him to hang on. Farr tried to force him off, and chopped down a right and left to the head. Louis replied by scoring with a hard right to the head and another on Farr's bleeding eye. Farr was still full of fight, and just before the bell shook Louis with a hard right hok to the body, and he took the honours for the round.

ROUND NINE

Farr came up comparatively fresh and eager to get to grips, and he opened the attack with two left hooks to the head. He then tore in furiously, and got Louis on the ropes, where he punched away smartly to the body. Joe fought back and got in two straight lefts, but Farr again feinting cleverly shot out a right, but it just missed its mark. Louis continued to concentrate on Farr's gory left eye, but Farr tried to keep him away by shooting stinging lefts. He got in a fine left hook to the body, and then forced Louis to the ropes once more with a heavy bombardment. At this stage Louis's right eye appeared to be puffing up. Farr again rushed him to the ropes with the fierceness of his attack, and he battered away at the negro's body. They clinched following a fine left hook by Farr, and Louis got in some jabs to the face. They again fell into a clinch, in which Farr landed with a right to the head, the force of which shook the champion. Following up, Farr poked Louis on the chin with a stiff left hook.

ROUND TEN

The crowd cheered vociferously for Farr as he came out for this session, and landed with a light left to the face and another to the stomach. Farr again walked into his man, and scored with a left hook to the body, to which Louis replied with another left-hander which had not the slightest weight behind it. Farr then threw over a hard right hook to the head, followed by two more rights to the same quarter. Farr was attacking ceaselessly, and got in another left to the body. Farr again tore into his man and forced him to the ropes, but Louis fought him off with a "haymaking" right, which, however, only just scraped Farr's face. It was a fortunate escape. Louis jabbed with his left as Tommy again moved in, but he missed Farr, landed with a light left to the face, and then missed with a "roundhouse" right. Louis fought back strongly towards the end of the round, and shook Farr with a right hook to the head just before the bell.

Louis's round.

ROUND ELEVEN

Farr was a little impetuous, and a wild right failed to find its mark. Farr continued to keep his left going well and he landed with a series of four in succession to Louis's face. He attempted to put over a smashing right, but he mistimed it and caught Louis on the shoulder. Farr maintained a furious attack and got in to the head with both hands. He ended the round with a fusillade of lefts to the face, and easily took the round.

ROUND TWELVE

The crowd was again shouting for Farr as Louis stepped in and shot a barrage of straight lefts. Farr returned to the attack, however, and stung the negro with a series of left hooks to the head. He drove his man to the ropes. Louis tried to force his way out, and landed with a right to the head, but it made no impression on Farr, who was displaying a magnificent defence. The negro was unable to get set as Farr moved around quickly, swiftly shooting out his left hand in disconcerting manner. Farr again shot out a chopping right-hander to Louis's chin, and the round finished even.

ROUND THIRTEEN

They exchanged lefts, and then, after circling each other, tore in and punched away to the body with heavy rights. Louis replied with several left hooks to the body, but Farr fought his man off, and got his left working again. Tommy's eyes and nose were slightly bleeding, but it did not look serious. Louis pushed over some short, snappy lefts to the head, but Farr countered with similar tactics. They continued to employ the same tactics, but Farr changed the order by scoring with two rights to the side of the head.

Farr attempted to open up an attack, but he missed badly with his right, although he scored with a left. Louis on the ropes, fought his way clear and proceeded to belabour Farr with some rights and lefts to the head. Farr wilted under the force of his attacks, one of which caused more blood to flow freely from his nose. An exchange of lefts and rights to the head followed, but Louis wound up the round with a vicious attack, and took the honours.

ROUND FOURTEEN

Louis started operations with a left, which he poked on to Farr's gory nose, but Farr retaliated with a right, which, however, missed the objective. As Louis walked in again Tomy ducked away, but Louis would not be denied, and landed a couple of lefts to the body. Louis was now definitely making the pace, and he caught Farr with a volley of straight lefts.

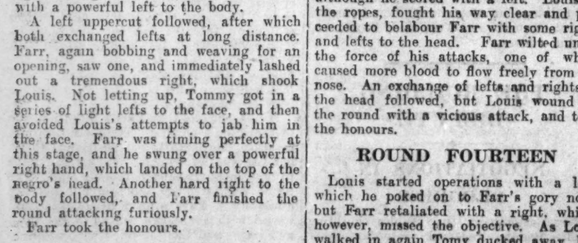

Farr replied by slinging over some right-handers, but they missed Louis's head by a wide margin. Louis landed to the side of the head with a short right, and caused Farr to dance out of distance.

Louis's round.

ROUND FIFTEEN

Farr came out first and met his man in the centre of the ring, where they shook hands for the final round. Farr immediately started to beat a tattoo of lefts to Louis's face, followed by a right to the head. They exchanged several

THE PRICE OF GRAIN

BIGGER RETURN DEMANDED

LOUTH BOARD CONSIDERS THE FARMERS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Monday.

STRONG demands for increased prices for grain in the Free State were made at the meeting of the Louth County Committee of Agriculture in Dundalk to-day. Mr. George Markey proposed a resolution requesting the Minister for Agriculture to fix the prices for grain so that the producer should obtain at least 25 per cent. more than in 1936 as his share of the world-wide increase in grain prices. The suggested prices were:—Wheat hushelling 62lb. and over, 40s. per barrel; wheat not hushelled, 35s. 6d.; barley 20s. and oats 17s.

Mr. Markey said that last year foreign wheat was extremely low in price compared with this year. Crops this year were not what they had been for the past few years. Recently he had been told that within the past two weeks oats had been sold at the ridiculously low price of 11s. per barrel, in Dublin. How did such a price compare with that of 3s. 4d. per stone charged for oatenmeal? It seemed clear that the farmer was not getting a proper return for his crops.

Mr. Reilly said that the yields were low this season, and if they only got the same prices as last year they would be selling at 40 per cent. reduction.

Mr. William Morgan said that one of the tremendous disadvantages of the tillage farmer was that everything he bought went up enormously, and he was still paid the lowest penny for his crops.

The Chairman (Mr. James T. McGee) said the principal matter was that they could not expect loyalty to the country from the farmer and from the agricultural labourer until the farmers were able to pay their workers a living wage. There had always been a suspicion that the hushelling of grain was unfair and that the corn-buyers in the past had belittled the agricultural worker. The greatest ambition in the past of the corn-buyer was apparently to hunt with the gentry over the lands of the farmer and to spit on the man who worked them. His own experience of wheat-growing this year was that in his fifty acres of wheat the average would be twelve barrels to the acre.

"If the agricultural people are to live on the land you must give them some inducement to stop there," added the chairman. "There is not much inducement for a young fellow in the country to marry and settle down on 24s. a week, and the audited accounts of the farmers do not show that they are able to pay any more. Agriculturists are entitled to as good a livelihood as the best in the land. They bore the brunt of the fight in the '80's, and it was the farmers and their sons who fought the land agitation from which the Irish Parliamentary Party grew, which did such a great service to the country."

Mr. William Morgan said when the wages of the agricultural workers were being increased there was no question of increasing them 100 per cent. As a fact, the wages were fixed at such a rate that it meant the reducing of some of them. As against that, the cost of machinery was more than a hundred per cent. increased, and it was not out of the way to ask for 17s. a barrel for oatenmeal when the labourer whose wife went to a shop was asked to pay 3s. 4d. a stone for oatenmeal.

REMOVAL DANGER

Mr. Seumas O'Haire said there was a number of factors to be considered before the price could be fixed. Oats would cost more if maize was prohibited to be imported, but would that be for the benefit of the farmer? In regard to barley they all knew that the one large buyer of barley was in the position that he must sell his products all over the world, and if there was an effort made to make him pay more the result would be that he would remove even a greater part of his brewery plant to England. He felt that the only proper basis for prices was supply and demand, and that any artificial fixing of them would only bring them deeper into the mire.

The Chairman said that their sole desire should be to see that the people of the whole country could get a living in reasonable Christian comfort. From the excellent addresses at Muintir na Tire by Father Hayes and the Bishop of Waterford, it was clear that the people were running from the land, and if that continued it meant throwing up the sponge so far as agriculture was concerned.

Mr. James Coburn, T.D., said that it should be urged that even an increased price for the farmer should not necessarily mean an increase in the cost of bread. If it did, that would mean an automatic reduction of 2s. or 3s. a week in the wages of agricultural labourers, who were generally men who had big families consuming a lot of bread.

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Mr. James Duffy said that farmers along the border were fearing that there was going to be a lot of smuggling of grass seed into the Free State markets from Northern Ireland now, and he hoped that adequate steps would be taken to deal with such if it occurred.

The Chairman replied that the Committee had nothing to do with that. There were officers appointed to see that there was no smuggling permitted.

GERMAN BARON FOUND SHOT DEAD IN KENYA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOMBASA (KENYA), Monday.

Baron von Bodenhausen, a director of the Kurwetu Seisal Estates, near Mombasa, who arrived in Kenya by air from Germany only last week, has been found shot dead in a Bungalow on the estates. Baron von Bodenhausen was 36 years of age.

WELCOME TO MR. DE VALERA

When Mr. de Valera went to supper in Ardmore College on Monday night he discovered that the organisers of Muintir na Tire had prepared a reception for him. Speeches of welcome were made by representatives of the farming and labour communities, the clergy and the authorities of the College.

When Mr. de Valera went for a walk along the cliffs later he discovered that bonfires had been lighted on the strand below him, and a large concourse of people followed in his wake.

An address on bi-lingual education was given by Sean O Conaire, of Dungarvan, who said that Irish was not progressing sufficiently, because Irish and English were being taught together in the schools, and one militated against the other. He urged the teaching of Irish only, and that all subjects be taught through the medium of Irish wherever that was possible.

short jabs, and then Farr shot out his left, which was working like a piston-rod.

He missed with a right to the body, but landed with a left, after which Louis tried a couple of rights. His timing was faulty, however, and Farr found opportunities to push out two lefts to the had. Farr, bobbing and weaving at a great pace, caught Louis on the neck.

Tommy landed with a left, but missed with his following right, whereafter Louis bore in and plastered the Welshman with heavy two-handed punching and drove him to the ropes. Farr advanced again, however, and scored with his left, much to the delight of the crowd; but he missed badly with a terrific right-hander.

Louis won the round.

The decision was loudly booed by the crowd. The referee was Mr. Arthur Donovan.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

PROTEST BY CORK BOARD

HEAVY BURDEN ON POOR FAMILIES

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MALLOW, Monday.

A DISCUSSION on the cost of living at the North Cork Board of Health meeting at Mallow to-day became at times very heated.

Mr. Sean Keane (Labour Party) moved that as bread, sugar and bacon are three of the principal items of food for the people an immediate reduction in price should be made, and that the Prices Commission should investigate the cost of production of flour, sugar and bacon.

Mr. E. Carey (Fine Gael) seconded. He asked did the Government get 4s. 6d. on every 20 stone sack of flour.

Mr. Patrick Daly, T.D. (Fine Gael)—The figure is more like 10s. 6d. The increase in cost of living is due to Government policy. If farmers are getting a good price for wheat—and I do not say that it is very good—that should not be responsible for the poor people paying 6d. for a loaf. The Government is getting £800,000 from the bacon industry, and this money is helping to keep on the economic war. It is well known to the representatives of Labour. It was well known before the general election, and the working-class vote turned away from Fianna Fail and increased the Labour vote; yet it was regrettable that on 21st July Labour representatives went into the lobby to vote for a return to power of Fianna Fail to continue the beggarship of the country. The people have elected a Government and we must not find fault with the majority.

Mr. Power—Good boy.

Mr. Corkery—If they expect farmers to provide enough flour for this country, they are going against nature.

Mr. Keane—I did not intend to criticise any party; I simply want to point out the necessity of reasonable food prices. Milling and sugar factory directors get big dividends out of all proportion to reason and justice.

WHEAT YIELD

Mr. O. J. McCarthy said that the Government advisers were "book men," doing right according to their lights, but they had no man with a right grasp of the agricultural system of the country. The wheat yield this year would be very low—lower than six barrels to the acre. He would like to know how State revenue from the bacon and sugar industries was being spent.

Mr. Daly—To keep on the economic war.

Mr. Power—Probably the price of tea will go up owing to the war in China. Why not condemn that? Mr. Daly is using this boardroom to talk politics.

The Chairman (Mr. J. M. O'Connor) said that he thought all would agree to pass the resolution to try and do good for the people by reducing food prices.

Mr. Corkery—I think that we will have more reason to find fault later on. The cost of living will increase still more.

The resolution was passed.

SPANISH STEAMER SHELLED

ATTACKED BY UNKNOWN SUBMARINE

PORT VENDRES (FRANCE), Monday.

The Spanish Government cargo steamer Cuidad de Reus arrived here under her own steam to-day after being hit above the waterline by a shell from a submarine of unknown nationality off Cape Agde, on the Mediterranean coast, west of Sete, last night.

The submarine fired several shots, it is stated, but no one was injured.

The Ciudad de Reus was carrying food from Marseilles to Spain.

Another report states that the ship was hit by a torpedo.

VALENCIA BOMBED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VALENCIA, Monday.

Three insurgent aeroplanes bombed Valencia this morning. Several bombs fell near a hospital in the suburb of Malvarrosa.

Steady progress by Government troops on the Aragon front is claimed. The insurgent forces are said to have fled towards Belchite, which is completely encircled.

A Salamanca communiqué, however, declares that all the enemy attacks in Aragon were repulsed with heavy loss.

ENGLISH AIRMAN CAPTURED

LANDED TOO SOON IN SANTANDER

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

HENDAYE, Monday.

Word has been received at the British Embassy here that Mr. Rupert Bellville, son of the late Captain F. A. Bellville, of Bembridge, Isle of Wight, was taken prisoner by the Santander militia on Wednesday evening, when he landed his private aeroplane at the Santander Aerodrome, and, after being held under guard all night, was forced to fly a Republican officer to either Gijon or Llanes.

Mr. Bellville was in San Sebastian preparing for his departure from Spain when the fall of Santander was prematurely announced. With a friend, Señor Ricardo Gonsalez-Gordon, proprietor of the Gonsalez Byass sherry firm, Mr. Bellville decided to fly to Santander with a few cases of sherry for the officers of the victorious troops. On their landing there militiamen ran forward from all sides and seized them. Mr. Bellville said that he was a journalist, while Señor Gonsalez gave himself out as an English friend. They were taken to the Town Hall, where they remained all night under guard.

In the morning Mr. Bellville was told that his life would be spared if he would fly an officer to Gijon, Señor Gonsalez to stay behind as a hostage. Mr. Bellville suggested that Llanes had a better aerodrome, and asked that Señor Gonsalez be taken to the aerodrome, so that he might be picked up immediately on his (Mr. Bellville's) return.

When the insurgent troops were seen approaching the city the guards at the aerodrome hurriedly left, and later Señor Gonsalez was able to join the insurgents when they entered the city. As soon as possible he came to Hendaye, and told the British Embassy what had happened to Mr. Bellville.

ITALIAN CARDINAL DEAD

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Monday.

Cardinal Gaetano Bisletti, head of the Congregation of Seminaries and of Universities of Studies, died here this evening. He was aged 81.

He was taken seriously ill last April.

Cardinal Bisletti was an Italian by birth.

THE CHINESE SITUATION

taken over four universities, four colleges, seven secondary schools and seven elementary schools which were hitherto under the direct control of the Nanking Government.

All anti-Japanese sentiments will be expunged from textbooks in use at these places, it is added.

SEMINARY LOOTED

PRIESTS MADE PRISONERS

Some thousand Chinese irregular troops yesterday morning seized and looted the French Catholic seminary at Heishankow, twelve miles north-west of Peiping, and carried off as prisoners eight French priests, three Hungarian priests, and one Spaniard, as well as twelve Chinese converts says a Reuter Peiping telegram.

Father Francois, the director of the seminary, was shot and seriously wounded.

Five thousand Chinese war refugees in the grounds of the seminary were robbed and driven out.

Last afternoon Japanese troops were despatched to the scene.

The American Consulate at Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung, has been closed, in pursuance of the American policy of evacuation from the interior of China. One hundred American missionaries, however, insist on staying.

The evacuation of 16,000 Japanese from the port of Tsingtao is almost complete.

Japanese ships will cease calling at Tsingtao after to-day.

NO PEACE TILL JAPAN WITHDRAWS

CHINESE PREMIER'S PLEA

A Reuter Nanking telegram says: General Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese Prime Minister and Generalissimo, was asked by the Press Association Special Correspondent, in an exclusive interview, upon what terms China would agree to terminate hostilities with the Japanese.

He replied that the question could only be answered when Japan decided to withdraw from the impossible position in which she found herself vis-à-vis China and the world. The necessity for international intervention in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war, not solely for China's sake, but for the sake of world peace, was emphasised by General Chiang Kai-shek.

The simple truth is, declared the Prime Minister, that Japan took action with the object of establishing a continental empire.

RESULTS OF CONFLICT

Several results, he said, had already arisen from the conflict:

1—The unifying and rallying of the Chinese people to defend themselves against a ruthless foe, who disregarded all the canons of international law and all sense of human decency.

2—The apparent acceptance by the Powers of the displacement of international law, and the substitution of a system of "incident-making," which was being used as a justification for a policy of annexation.

3—The reverberations of the systematic intention of Japan to devastate important seaports in China.

4—Proof that stronger though Japan may be, China refuses any longer to submit to the treatment Japan is accustomed to accord her.

5—Japan is steadily wiping out her own investments in China, and destroying her own commercial opportunities in a land where wise, statesmanlike and courteous treatment would unquestionably give her almost a trade monopoly.

CHINA'S APOLOGY

The Chinese have opened negotiations with the American Chargé d'Affaires in Nanking with a view to the settlement of the "deplorable incident" of the accidental bombing of the President Hoover yesterday, says a telegram received this morning.

The Foreign Office has instructed Mr. C. T. Wang, the Chinese Ambassador, to express China's regrets to the State Department in Washington, and to announce China's readiness to make full redress.

The Chinese assert that at the time of the bombing the President Hoover was sailing between two Japanese warships, which added to the airmen's conviction that the ship was a Japanese transport. The Chinese spokesman emphasises that the Chinese Air Force would never deliberately attack foreign ships.

THE POSITION

China, the General continued, happens to be fighting with inadequate equipment not only her own battle, but the battle of all nations who base their lives upon the sanctity and validity of treaties, especially those whose large commercial interests in China are being systematically destroyed. It is not difficult, he said, to prophesy what will happen to the trade of foreign nations if Japan secures domination over China, nor is special prescience required to estimate what will happen politically.

The question of intervention, he declared, rested with the Powers who created the Nine-Power Pact and the Kellogg Peace Pact, and who organised the League of Nations. Unquestionably distinct responsibility rested upon the shoulders of someone to take steps to prevent the utter ruination of China, and to secure possibilities of conducting legitimate trade.

CHINESE OFFICIAL STATEMENT

THE INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENT

The Chinese Embassy has issued the following statement, says Reuter:—"A spokesman of the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs emphatically denied yesterday rumours recently circulated in Shanghai to the effect that Chinese troops would take advantage of the present hostilities in the Shanghai area to take back the International Settlement by force. These rumours have, apparently, been created by Japanese sources, he said, with the object of arousing the suspicions and fears of foreigners.

"Chinese military operations in Shanghai have no other object than self defence against Japanese attack, and it is equally the wish of the Chinese Government, as it is the desire of interested Powers, that normal conditions should be as little disturbed and as speedily restored as possible.

"Contrary to Japanese statements that only military establishments form the objectives of Japanese air raids, there are many visible proofs of wanton destruction of civilian life and property by Japanese bombing 'planes. Educational institutions have received their special attention. Among those partially or totally destroyed were the Pauling Girls' School, owned by a foreign mission; the Kiangsi Agricultural Institute; and the normal school for rural education—all three being situated in Nanchang, Kiangsi Province. In Nanking the National Central University and its experimental middle school; the School for Children of Revolutionary Martyrs, and the Shensan Hospital, have all suffered heavy damage."

It is reported, without confirmation hitherto, that the British steamers Chekiang (2,172 tons) and Wenchow (3,113 tons) have been stopped and boarded by parties from Japanese warships, says a Reuter Shanghai telegram.

The boarding parties inspected the ships' papers, it is stated, and then allowed the vessels to proceed.

The owners state that they have no knowledge of the incident.

TEXT OF SINO-SOVIET PACT

ALL AGGRESSION RENOUNCED

The text of the Non-Aggression Pact concluded between China and Soviet Russia was received in London yesterday, says Reuter, and is as follows:—

The National Government of the Republic of China and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, animated by the desire to contribute to the maintenance of general peace, consolidate the amicable relations now existing between them on a firm and lasting basis, and confirm in more precise manner the obligations mutually undertaken under the Treaty for the Renunciation of War, signed in Paris on August 27th, 1928, have resolved to conclude the present Treaty, and have for this purpose appointed as their Plenipotentiaries—that is to say—His Excellency the President of the National Government of the République of China, Dr. Wang Chung-hui, Minister of Foreign Affairs; the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Mr. Dimitri Bogomoloff, Ambassador - Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to the Republic of China—who, having communicated their full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following:

THE ARTICLES

Article 1—The two high contracting parties solemnly re-affirm that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and that they renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with each other, and in pursuance of this pledge they undertake to refrain from any aggression against each other, either individually or jointly with one or more other Powers.

Article 2—In the event that either of the high contracting parties should be subjected to aggression on the part of one or more third Powers, the other high contracting party obligates itself not to render assistance of any kind, either directly or indirectly, to such third Power or Powers, at any time during the entire conflict, and also to refrain from taking any action or entering into any agreement which may be used by the aggressor, or aggressors, to the disadvantage of the party subjected to aggression.

Article 3—The provisions of the present treaty shall not be so interpreted as to affect or modify the rights and obligations arising in respect of the high contracting parties out of bilateral or multilateral treaties or agreements of which both the high contracting parties are signatories, and which were concluded prior to entering into force of the present treaty.

FOR FIVE YEARS

Article 4—The present treaty is drawn up in duplicate in English. It comes into force on the day of signature by the abovementioned, and shall remain in force for a period of five years. Either of the high contracting parties may notify the other six months before the expiration of this period of its desire to terminate the treaty. In case both parties fail to do so in time, the treaty shall be considered as being automatically extended for a period of two years after the expiration of the first period. Should neither of the high contracting parties notify the other six months before the expiration of the two-year period of its desire to terminate the treaty, it shall continue in force for another period of two years, and so on successively.

In witness whereof the respective plenipotentiaries have signed the present treaty and have affixed thereunto their seals.

Done at Nanking the 21st day of August, 1937.

CLAIM BY CHINA

The Chinese Embassy in London last night received the following cable from the Foreign Office in Nanking:—

"After severe engagements lasting two days Japanese troops in the vicinity of Lotien virtually isolated, with no possibility of receiving further reinforcements.

"Chinese forces still holding Chuyungkuam against powerful Japanese attacks. Meanwhile full division Japanese Kwantung Army advancing from Jehol in an attempt to threaten Chinese rear meeting with strong resistance.

"Brisk fighting continues Chinghai-Tuliuchen sector, Tsinpu Railway."

CHINA'S NOTE TO GENEVA

GRAVE CHARGES

GENEVA, Monday.

A strong indictment of Japan is made by China in a Note she has addressed to the League of Nations, through Dr. Hoo Chi-tsai, the permanent Chinese delegate.

The Japanese Government are charged with violating, not only the League Covenant, but also the Nine-Power Treaty and the Paris Peace Pact.

The letter accompanying this communication requests the League authorities to refer it not only to League members but also to members of the Advisory Committee that was set up in February, 1933, at the time of the Japanese action in Manchuria.

After explaining the incidents that led up to the opening of the present hostilities, the Note stresses China's desire for peace, and concludes:

"The above brief account of what Japan has done since the outbreak of the Lukouchaio incident on July 7 brings out the following facts most clearly, truthfully, and indisputably:—

AGGRESSION

"Japanese armed forces have invaded China's territory, and are extensively attacking Chinese positions by land, sea and air in Central, as well as in North China. It is thus a case of aggression pure and simple.

"China is exercising the natural right of self-defence, the failure of all other means of repelling violence having compelled her to resort to force, which is contrary to China's wish.

"Japan's present action in China is the continuation of her aggressive programme started in Manchuria in September, 1931. Japan has now occupied the Peiping-Tientsin area, and is bent upon the extension of her occupation to the whole of North China and the domination of other regions, in spite of all her assurances that she has no territorial designs on this country. She is attempting to destroy all the work of reconstruction which the Chinese nation has so steadily and assiduously undertaken during the last ten years.

"In thus deliberately disturbing the peace of the Far East, Japan has violated the fundamental principles of the League of Nations. Using war as an instrument of national policy and ignoring all the pacific means for the settlement of international controversies, she has violated the Paris Peace Pact of 1927. Acting contrary to her pledge to respect the sovereignty, the independence and the territorial and administrative integrity of China, she has violated the Nine-Power Treaty concluded at Washington in 1922."

EDUCATION IN RURAL AREAS

PLEA FOR BETTER SCHOOLS

SEVERE CRITICISM OF SYSTEM

SEVERE criticisms of the educational system in the Free State and of the Department of Education were heard by Mr. De Valera, President of the Executive Council yesterday, when he attended the proceedings of the Rural Week organised by Muintir Na Tire in St. Declan's Irish College, Ardmore, County Waterford.

Speakers asserted that the system was wrong; that rural education was not catering adequately for the requirements of the agricultural community; that the people on the land were as much entitled to secondary schools as the people in the cities and towns; that the Department's programme was simply cramming; that teachers had been harassed by inspectors; and that the building and maintenance of schools should be a State burden, or, alternatively, a charge on the Sweepstakes Fund.

The President, who motored from Dublin, will spend a few days' holiday in the village, and intends to listen to the various discussions at the college during the week.

In an address on "Rural Education," Mr. M. P. Linehan, Treasurer, I.N.T.O., speaking at the principal session yesterday, said the teacher must play a growing part as a community leader, and must no longer be a producer of robots. The primary teacher to-day was denied the proper sense of freedom and responsibility. There were half a million children attending over five thousand primary schools in the country, and there was a necessity for a different approach to their educational treatment in different areas. They needed as rural teachers the cream of the race, second in character and ability only to the clergy. A considerable proportion of student teachers was chosen not because of their standard of education, but because of an accident of birth, and a still greater proportion because of their knowledge of a particular subject.

He urged that they should be chosen in order of merit, and if greater proficiency in Irish was necessary, they should raise the pass standard in Irish.

He believed that the four-year incarceration and segregation of student teachers was educationally unsound, was bound to produce a narrow outlook, and did not give a sense of freedom and responsibility. He complained of the absence of facilities to enable teachers to acquire a University education. The farming community formed the bulk of the citizens and bore the major cost of the Universities, which expended most of their energies in preparing professional men for export; and while criticism had been offered to the policy of bounties and subsidies as providing cheaper food for foreigners, nobody ever seemed to have criticised the free gifts of professional men which our Universities are making every year to other countries.

He suggested that Munti na Tire should agitate until every rural community had a beautiful school building, with science and manual class-rooms, a library, an assembly hall and a playing field. He said that only four per cent. of boys sitting for the intermediate certificate took rural science, which was a vocational subject.

The country was being detracted because of the pleasures of town and city life, and "back to the land" would become a counter-attraction only when people were trained to set a higher value on country pleasures.

TEACHING IRISH

Commenting on the teaching of Irish, Mr. Linehan said: "I am one with every one of you in making our people Irish-speaking, but I do seriously urge that our present methods of doing so are bound to react unfavourably on the education of the rural community."

As an alternative he proposed the raising of the school-leaving age to sixteen years, and the compulsory attendance at national schools of the rural child of that age.

The concentration on preparation for examinations in all our educational systems did not, he said, tend to keep the brilliant boys on the land, and farming would not be in the depressed condition it was if men put the same ability and energy into farming that was put by the products of the secondary schools into the profession they followed.

Mr. E. Hamill, Dundalk, proposing a vote of thanks to the speaker, said that they had the unfortunate mental outlook that everyone except those who voiced the opinion was overpaid. A good man could never be paid too much, be he president of a country or a teacher in a country school. Whatever this country had achieved was due to the teachers; the language could never be saved but for them, and the people could be kept on the land only by the teachers of Ireland.

BETTER SCHOOLS

The first thing the country needed was a programme that would do away with the filthy buildings dotted all over the countryside and called schools. The country child was entitled to even better schools than the city or town child because he had to trudge night and morning, winter and summer, over dirty roads, and he should have a comfortable building with a decent fire. Until they produced more out of the soil they could never hope to build up their country. He advocated the inculcation in the children of a love of flowers and a respect for property, and suggested that parents should be consulted more frequently as to the manner in which schools were conducted, and that a committee of parents who could advise on educational matters would be a desirable institution.

Mr. W. Hans (Mountbellew) seconded.

Mr. P. J. Nunan (Tralee) said that heretofore the cry was "Back to the land," but now it seemed to be "Stay on the land." If there were so many people anxious to get away from the land he would guarantee to get sufficient young fellows in County Kerry who would be willing to snap it up in two minutes. "Give them the land," he said, "and 99 per cent. of the people will go back to it."

Father Lambe, Roscarbery, regretted that the Minister for Education and a number of officials should be permitted to draw up a programme for schools in the rural areas, and suggested that there be an advisory board set up, consisting of representatives of the managers, the national and secondary teachers, and the universities, who would advise the Minister as to the best method of administering rural education. A crying need existed for domestic science for girls. It was much more important that a girl should know how to sew, bake, cook a meal, and keep a house clean, than that she should know how to add up a few figures.

RURAL REQUIREMENTS

Mr. J. Hurley, T.D., Cork, suggested that vocational schools, and even technical and secondary schools, should have their place in the rural parts of the country just as well as in the towns and cities. They should break away from the idea of the primary school being the poor man's university and supplement it by other institutions. The school in a district should be the outstanding building after the church, and the State should provide not alone the full amount for construction, but for maintenance as well. If the State funds did not permit that, he suggested, in all seriousness, that sweepstakes should be utilised to provide the necessary funds.

The Rev. J. M. Hayes said that they should break away from the red tape of the present educational system, and rural Ireland demanded that there should be a complete change in the system and that it should be left in the hands of the teachers, who were the most competent to deal with the formation of characters.

Others who contributed to the discussion were Mr. J. Timoney, Cappawhite; the Rev. Brother Crehan, Mount Sion, Waterford, and Mr. P. Walsh, Templemore, who read a paper on the secondary school system.

THE WONDERS OF MARS

A PHOTOGRAPHIC PROBLEM

EFFECTS OF RED, YELLOW AND BLUE LIGHTS

By Our Astronomical Correspondent.

MERCURY is in inferior conjunction with the Sun on the 14th, and reaches western elongation on the 30th. He will, therefore, be visible as a morning star in the latter part of the month, and should be looked for low in the east, an hour or so before sunrise.

Venus continues to shine as a morning star, rising about three hours in advance of the Sun throughout the month. At 5 a.m. on the 2nd she will be in conjunction with the waning moon, and these two objects should provide a pretty spectacle in the early hours. On the morning of the 24th the planet will be seen very close to the first-magnitude star, Regulus.

Mars and Jupiter are both objects of the evening sky, being visible in the twilight low in the south-west. Mars is the more westerly of the two, and is now faint enough to be confused with Antares, or any other first-magnitude star. He is moving rapidly away from the Earth, and his distance from the Sun is also increasing, both of which account for the fact that he is now but a pale shade of his former brilliance, being, in fact, only one-fifth as bright as he appeared a few months ago.

Saturn is in Pisces, just under the eastern side of the Great Square of Pegasus, and very well placed for telescopic work. The planet will be in opposition on the 25th, and, therefore, on the meridian at local midnight. The planet's ring-system is still nearly edge-wise on to the observer, and will close up further before the end of the year, after which it will begin to widen rapidly. At present we are looking at the southern side of the rings.

A Martian Mystery

Once again Mars has been figuring in the news and maintaining his reputation for providing surprises of an unusual kind when these are least expected. As was mentioned in these notes a few months ago, the opposition of the planet in May of this year was an unfavourable one for observers in the British Isles because of the planet's low altitude. The American observatories in California and Arizona, being much further south, were more fortunate in this respect, and some useful observations were obtained.

Mars has been regularly photographed with the large refractors of the Lick and Lowell Observatories at each opposition since 1924. It is well known that, for technical reasons, these photographs do not render visible any more fine detail than that which may be seen visually with much smaller instruments. Their chief interest lies in the possibility of obtaining images of the planet by light of one colour only. This is effected by the use of colour filters, similar to those which many amateur photographers now place over their camera lenses.

The photographs taken by red and yellow light have always shown up the ordinary, visual, dark markings in marked contrast with the lighter areas, while those taken by blue light have shown little or nothing on the disc beyond the small cloud caps which seem permanently to hang above the polar snows. This striking difference between the photographs in long and short wave-lengths was clearly analogous to the haze-piercing effect of the infra-red rays of terrestrial photography, and an explanation on these lines was generally accepted. Photographers are now quite familiar with the statement that distant objects can only be photographed satisfactorily by light of long wave-length—the red or infra-red. Blue light, to which the ordinary photographic plate is most sensitive, is scattered and absorbed by the atmospheric haze in its journey from the object to the camera lens. Sunlight falling on Mars has to complete a double traverse of the planet's atmosphere, and then pass through our own atmosphere before reaching the camera. It is scarcely to be expected that the blue light, which is the more easily scattered, will survive the journey.

There was one serious inconsistency in such an obvious explanation. It was shown that in order to produce the observed scattering of the blue light the atmosphere of Mars must be two or three times as dense as our own, granted that it was not widely different in composition. This point could not be conceded, since several other pieces of evidence were conclusive that the atmosphere must be much less tenuous than that of the Earth. The photographs by blue light showed nothing of the planet's surface; and, so a compromise was reached by supposing the planet surrounded by a dust-laden envelope, the dust particles being of just such a size as would be most effective for blue-scattering, while scarcely affecting the passage of the longer wave-lengths.

Judge the surprise, therefore, of Dr. Slipher, whose photographs, taken at Lowell Observatory in May of this year, showed up Syrtis Major and other well-known features on Mars just as clearly by blue light as by red light! At first he supposed his colour filters had been mixed, and that the results must be illusory. The photographs were repeated night after night, but with just the same effect. The atmosphere had cleared. Whatever had been causing the scattering of the blue light in the planet's atmosphere, it had been temporarily swept away all over the Syrtis Major region of many thousands of square miles in extent. A month later the obscuring matter had returned, as thick as before, and the blue photographs once more registered a blank. What is the nature of this obscuring haze, and how is it formed? Here are problems to occupy the observers of Mars for many years to come. Evidently there is still a great deal to be learnt about the atmospheric and meteorological conditions on our planetary neighbour.

The Sun

The Sun crosses the celestial equator at 11 hours on the 23rd., marking by that event the equinox and the beginning of autumn. Its southerly motion will be very noticeable in the middle of the month by the lessening of daytime. At this season of the year the interval between sunrise and sunset is decreasing most rapidly, amounting to about four minutes per day in the latitude of the British Isles.

The Moon

New Moon occurs on the 4th at 23hrs.; First Quarter on the 12th at 21hrs.; Full Moon on the 20th at 12hrs., and Last Quarter on the 27th at 6hrs

On the evening of the 14th the Moon occults the star Xi Sagittarii (mag. 3.6). The disappearance takes place at the Moon's dark limb at 6.30 p.m. approximately.

The Stars

On the 1st at 23hrs. (11 p.m.), on the 15th at 22hrs. (10 p.m.), and on the 30th at 21hrs. (9 p.m.) the following constellations will be visible:—Pegasus and Andromeda will occupy the greater part of the south-eastern sky, with Cassiopeia nearly overhead, and Cetus stretching its great length along the horizon. These will be followed by Perseus and Auriga in the eastern sky. West of the meridian, and nearly overhead, Lyra and Cygnus will be found, with Aquila and Delphinus lower in the sky.

The darkest nights of the month occur in the first fortnight, and conditions will be favourable for those who wish to follow the Comet Finsler into the north-western sky. This comet is now receding from both the Earth and Sun, and becoming fainter. It will, nevertheless, continue to be an interesting object in the telescope for some weeks to come. At its closest approach to the Earth on August 9 it was 52,000,000 miles away, and about 80,000,000 miles from the Sun. Though it was rather a disappointing spectacle to the naked eye, photographs taken in the middle of last month showed that it possessed a faint tail, 20° in length, made up of many streamers emanating from the nucleus, which changed their shape from night to night.

All times in these notes are Greenwich mean time. One hour must be added to convert to summer time.

CORRIDA'S FINE FORM

Satisfactory Work of Solfo : To-day's Selections

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Monday Night.

THE victory of M. Marcel Boussac's mare Corrida in the Grand Internationale at Ostend yesterday is very illuminating. Corrida is, without any question, the most interesting five-year-old mare in training to-day. In the course of her career she has been tried more highly than any of her sex has been for many years.

She came here from France, after a bright two-year-old career, to be trained for the fillies' classics. Unfortunately for Mr. Lambton, who thought the world of her, she was nearly always amiss and could never do herself justice, so she was taken back to France, where she started winning.

In the autumn last year she came here and won the Hardwicke Stakes at Ascot; in France she won the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, and in Belgium she won the same race that she won again yesterday. In the meantime she had gone to Munich to run for the Brown Band and was beaten after a long and trying journey in the hottest weather.

Her Best Form

Neither in France nor in England had she shown her best form this year until yesterday, but, at Ostend she completely reversed the Epsom form with His Grace, who finished well in front of her in the Coronation Cup when she was here in June. Yesterday she also had behind her Le Grand Duc, who was third to Mid-day Sun and Sandsprite in the Derby.

Neither of the English horses, as a matter of fact, was placed, and the complete failure of Le Grand Duc seemed to drive another nail into our classic coffin. M. Boussac's mare started favourite, and was a comfortable winner by three parts of a length.

The odd thing is that Corrida is by Coronach, who is not greatly liked as a sire, but it might be hazarded that her excellence comes from her dam, the Sardanapale mare Zariba, who is also the dam of Goyescas, Abjer and Goya II., who, as I mentioned here yesterday, will be more or less fancied next week for the St. Leger.

Solfo's Good Work

The Doncaster candidate that all the talk is about just now is Solfo, who is giving such satisfaction in his work at Newmarket, and is captivating all the horse watchers there.

But then he did that also before the Derby. His trainer was much disappointed with his running at Epsom, and the only explanation he could offer was that the colt could not come down the hill on the hard ground. He is expected to do better at Doncaster than he did at Epsom.

Selections

The racing will be continued to-morrow at Birmingham and Lewes. At the former meeting the Midland Plate may be won by TRIUMPHANT. SAINT MAGNUS should take the August Handicap, and HIGHLANDER the Packington Welter.

At Lewes British QUOTA may win the August Handicap, and EPINAL the Larnach T.Y.O. Plate.

GALTEE MORE.

EDGEHILL BEST BET

Crampit May Prove a Winner at Lewes

RACEGOERS will find plenty to interest them at the final stage of Birmingham and Lewes meetings. Those attending the Midland meeting may not find one better to contribute towards paying expenses than Edgehill, who has been sent from Newmarket to represent Lord Rosebery in the August Handicap. Those unable to attend either meeting may find it profitable to couple Edgehill with Crampit, who runs in the Uckfield Handicap at Lewes. Both horses have been seen to advantage in their work since last racing in public.

Edgehill had useful form in the spring. He has missed several engagements on account of the firm going. I am told that he is at his best and is expected to be concerned with the finish.

It will not be an easy race to win, as the runners may include St. Magnus, winner of the Liverpool Summer Cup; Soria, who won a similar race at Salisbury and now puts up 7lb. extra; The Bore, fourth to Red Squaw at Kempton Park; Take My and Biretta.

I am told that Biretta has improved since finishing second to Madeira Knight at Derby. Considerable attention will probably be paid to Take My, who won over a similar distance at Stockton. The gelding will be ridden by the apprentice Wells, which will help to nullify the 7lb. penalty incurred. Windsor Lady, who was successful yesterday, may be saddled again. I rely on EDGEHILL.

Those who saw Greenroom finish fourth to Unbreakable at Goodwood and when second to Monty at Sandown Park will agree that the colt has an excellent chance in the Midland Plate.

Triumphant is one that may be concerned with the finish. He proved an easy winner at Folkestone and is reported as having trained on in the right direction since. Ramayana II. may do best of the others.

GREENROOM

is the selection.

Apart from

who, as already suggested, may win the Uckfield Handicap, Parisian and Berestella appear to offer good betting mediums at Lewes. Berestella and Parisian have improved since last seen out, and if running up to home form should win their engagements.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Pascal to Miss St. Leger

Mr. H. E. Morris's Pascal will not contest the St. Leger at Doncaster on Wednesday week. The colt has done no work at all for the last fortnight. Earlier in the season he was successful in the Lingfield Park Plate and the Sussex Stakes at Goodwood.

Peter Maher to Ride Nectar II.

Peter Maher has been engaged to ride Nectar II. in the Prince Edward Handicap at Manchester on Saturday. Maher rode the horse when he was successful in the Northumberland Plate at Newcastle. Nectar II. has won four of his last five races.

W. Nightingall's Treble

W. Nightingall registered a "treble" at Lewes Races yesterday. His winners were Silvapura in the Juvenile Selling Plate, Silver Bow II. in the Southdown Welter Handicap Plate, and Thalia in the Apprentices' Plate.

Prince Charlie III. from France

Prince Charlie III., who has come over from France to contest the Rothschild Plate at Lewes to-day, will be trained in future by Frank Butters at Newmarket.

Bloodstock Sent Abroad

Philistina, a three-year-old gelding, by Ethnarch out of Erasure, who recently joined Gordon Sadler's team at Newmarket, has been sent abroad.

Fillies Turned Out of Training

Toplady, a three-year-old filly, by Solario out of Miss Quince; and, Lovers' Lane, a three-year-old filly, by Fairway out of Wings of Love, hitherto trained by O. Bell at Lambourn, have been turned out of training.

Additions to T. Leader's Team

Several hurdle racers and steeplechasers have arrived at Newmarket to be trained for racing under National Hunt Rules. Patrimony, Mandritsara, Easter Rush, Royal Measure, David's Gain, and Scotch Prophet, have arrived at Tom Leader's training establishment, Wroughton House, Newmarket. Tincture, from College Leader's stable, is to join Leader's string shortly.

Racehorse Breaks a Leg

Golden Nile, a three-year-old colt, while contesting the Droitwich Handicap at Birmingham yesterday, stumbled and broke his near foreleg. He was subsequently destroyed. T. Bartlam, his rider, was thrown, but escaped injury. As Golden Nile was leading the field at the time of the mishap several other competitors had to be snatched up to prevent them from galloping over Bartlam as he lay on the ground.

NEWMARKET NOTES

St. Leger Candidates at Work. Hints for To-day

NEWMARKET, Monday.

IT was rather dull in the early hours this morning, but later it turned out fine. Captain Boyd-Rochfort sent his St. Leger candidate, Perifox (J. Barnett), Flares (P. Beasley), and Boswell (W. Stephenson), seven furlongs as just a useful rate. Perifox always moves impressively in these easy pace gallops, but although he has proved to be temperamental I should not care to speak too unfavourably about his prospects at Doncaster at the moment.

The other prominent candidates in the St. Leger—Sultan Mahomed, Goya II. and Fair Copy—were restricted to cantering exercise with their respective teams.

Captain Whitaker gave Everything Goes, Salmon Pool, Irish Butter, Actæon and Tout Change a nice striding pace gallop over one mile and a half. The last-named pair, who moved well throughout, should earn winning brackets before the season terminates, but we shall probably find Salmon Pool showing to more advantage under the winter code. He has all the makings of a hurdle racer.

Woodstock, who has just re-commenced strong work, accompanied Tapageur in a similar gallop. Gothic, Peter Kane, Golden Shore, Laureat II. and Moody were given three-parts speed spins over one mile. R.D., Welltaken and White Swan covered five furlongs sharply.

On the Racecourse side J. Cannon sent Foxwarren and Pharillon one mile and a quarter at half-speed. Golden Spire and Cordilleras went seven furlongs at a similar pace, and Aberdare, Neferati and Revelation went six furlongs at a good pace.

We shall be strongly represented at Birmingham to-morrow. I look upon Lodestone and as our best in the Doddington Selling Plate, and the latter gets my vote.

PRESSIT

is likely to do better than Handley in the Sutton Selling Plate.

For the Midland Plate I look upon Matsudira and as the pair who hold the best prospects of our probable starters. Mrs. Arthur James's chestnut holds the best public form of this pair, although he has failed to register a success. In his last effort he was fourth to Unbreakable, Pactolus and Khan Bahuddin at Goodwood, and previously had been runner-up to the smart Monty for the Great Kingston Plate at Sandown.

C. Leader has a great chance of winning the August Handicap with who is so fit and well at the moment that I shall not hesitate in giving him the preference over our other probable starters, Edgehill, The Bore and Biretta.

There may be very little to choose between Carnival Boy and in the Coventry Plate. Although I greatly fear Miss Monckton's colt I intend to follow up the fortunes of Frank Butters's mare.

SPARTAN III.

and Highlander will strip in fine trim for the Packington Welter Plate, and I shall rely upon the former.

At Lewes my fancies are:—2.0, Shanganagh Lady gelding; 3.0, Mandrin; 4.0, Crab Hole; 4.30, Crampit (next best).

CLAREMORRIS TO-DAY

Interesting Sport Promised at Western Meeting

Train—Westland Row, 7.10 a.m.

THOUGH fields for some of the races at Claremorris will be on the small side, the meeting promises to provide an interesting afternoon's sport. For the Totalisator Plate nine of the ten horses entered have been declared as runners. They are a moderate lot, and Palissade, who has been running in better class company, may win.

The Claremorris Plate, a hurdle race, and the Castlemacgarrett Plate, a steeplechase, are other interesting races. In the former Irish Eve and Owen Mor, who were first and second at Ballinrobe, divided by a neck, will meet again, and, with a 4lb. pull in the weights, Owen Mor should reverse the placings. Triple Alliance should win the Castlemacgarrett Plate. Selections:—

Claremorris Plate—Owen Mor.
Western Plate—Battle Scent.
Totalisator Plate—Palissade.
Irish National Hunt Plate—Lady Barney.
Ring Plate—Foxie.
Castlemacgarrett Plate—Triple Alliance.

LONDON BETTING

LIGHT WAGERING ON ST. LEGER

MID-DAY SUN RETAINS HIS POSITION AS FAVOURITE

Backers showed very little inclination to bet on the St. Leger when the card was called-over at the Victoria Club, London, last evening. The wagering was very light.

Mid-day Sun retained his position as favourite. After being backed to win £2,000 his closing price was 3 to 1. Less than a week ago the Derby winner was quoted at 11 to 4.

Sultan Mahomed wound up at 9 to 2 against after being backed to win £1,000 at 95 to 20, thus retaining his position as second favourite.

Perifox, who was quoted at 17 to 2 at the previous call-over, was on offer at 100 to 12 after being supported to win £2,500 at 9 to 1.

The Manton-trained Cold Scent had admirers. He was backed to win £4,000 at 100 to 9.

Fair Copy retained his previous quoted price of 10 to 1 after being supported to win £2,000.

Solfo, who did a good gallop at Newmarket at the week-end, had supporters to win £3,000. His closing price was 100 to 8.

There were only trifling amounts invested on Goya II., Full Sail and Chulmleigh.

DONCASTER SALES

HIGH-CLASS YEARLINGS TO BE OFFERED

Doncaster Sales open next week, and the usual exodus of Irish yearlings is now taking place. Some, in fact, from the great Irish farms have already departed. This year the sales may or may not be the market for bloodstock that they have been in other years; but, on the other hand, the Irish breeders are back again on their former footing, untrammelled by Customs or any kind of embargo. They have some splendid animals to offer, both as regards breeding and good looks.

The Doncaster Sales list is never a large one, but against that it is exclusive. Everything points, of course, to the possibility of Fairway's and Solario's stock making big figures.

On the Tuesday the Hon. George Lambton should lead in the big money with his draft. His best sellers will be, probably, a Fairway colt out of Princess Sublime and a grey Tetratema colt out of St. Dromac.

The Irish yearlings from the Kildangan Stud will follow in the ring. Among them the Bulger colt out of Mrs. Freeman seems to be outstanding. Mr. J. J. Parkinson has some lots to be put up on Tuesday morning also. On that morning the Sezincoote Stud, in Gloucester, is selling, and one might be inclined to expect a filly from there to do well. She is by Trimdon, out of Tiberia, and a three-parts sister to Tiberius.

Ireland again comes into the ring when the stock from Mr. S. J. Parr's establishment and that of his brother is put up. Mr. F. B. O'Toole is another Irish vendor.

A FAIRWAY FILLY

Then all eyes will be on Lord Derby's offering, and the Swynford Paddocks Stud's outstanding lot this year appears to be a chestnut filly by Fairway, from Croisette. Another noteworthy lot is a brown filly, by Hyperion, out of Santa Rita. The Beech House Stud is selling a Blandford colt out of Portrait, a Gainsborough mare, originally the property of the Confey Stud.

A number of Irish-bred lots are in the list for Tuesday evening. Among them are those owned by Mrs. George Dennehy, who has four colts for sale this time. They are sired by Beresford, Trigo, Bulger and Mr. Jinks. Mr. Frank Tuthill is sending over nine yearlings. Some of them are sired by Apron, and two by Sandwich. The Middleton Stud offering includes a brown colt by Bosworth out of Aryan that should attract attention.

On the Wednesday some of the Worksop Manor stock will be in the picture. Captain Brassey has some attractively-bred lots in his draft for that day. The evening sale embraces the lot from the Compton Park Stud. Thirteen very well-bred animals comprise that draft. It is pretty safe to prophesy big prices for the Solario youngsters among them. Perhaps it is not too daring to say at this stage that the bay filly by that sire out of Snow Glory, bred on similar lines to Mid-day Sun, this year's Derby winner, will prove one of the high lights of the week. Such notable sires as Blenheim, Colombo, Fairway, Manna, Caerleon and Singapore are responsible for the other lots among the Compton Park entry.

KILBERRY YEARLINGS

Following shortly after the Compton Park stock comes that from the Kilberry Stud, which brings us back to Ireland again. Among these County Meath youngsters is a massive colt, sired by Scarlet Tiger, from Miss Marcus. He looks the making of a high-class racehorse. Another representative of the Kilberry Farm is an Ulster Lily colt by Roidore, and among the fillies there is a half-sister to Guinea Gap. Other Irish lots to come under the hammer on this evening will be those from the Fort Union Stud, the property of Lord Adare. Seven in all, one may predict that the Mr. Jinks colt out of Lay Sister will be admired—profitably so. But the others also are well bred, and sired by Tetratema, Young Lover, Bosworth and Caerleon, while their dams are all successful matrons with form to their credit. Lieut.-Colonel Blacker has a couple or three lots listed for Wednesday evening. They will be followed by twelve from the Victor Stud, Tipperary.

SLEDMERE YEARLINGS

Thursday morning's sale includes the produce from the world famous Yorkshire centre of bloodstock breeding—the Sledmere Stud. Numbering thirteen, they represent some of the best blood in the Stud Book. It will be no surprise if a Sledmere-bred colt by Sansovino out of Lady of the Snows travels well in the bidding. A Mannamead colt out of Herself should do likewise, and so should a Fairway filly out of Trustful. The Ballykisteen yearlings follow those from Sledmere in the list—twelve of them.

The evening session on Thursday opens with the Gilltown Stud contingent, the property of Lord Furness. It will be remembered that it was from this quarter that the record figure came last year (fifteen thousand odd for the Golden Hair colt). This time there is a Blandford colt to come under the hammer, and his dam is Benvenuto Cellini, a mare who traces back to Waffles. Later in the evening seven lots belonging to Captain J. B. and Lady Moyra Fitzgerald, of the Walton Manor, will be put up, and will be followed by those from the Mondellihy Stud in Co. Limerick, now the property of Lieut.-Commander Peter Fitzgerald.

This brings us on to what has often been the most important selling day of the week. Friday morning opens with seven lots from the Cleaboy Stud at Mullingar. Soon after come along those from Cloghran Stud. Among this lot is a Blandford filly out of Reverentia. She is a full sister to Baba Shah and a half-sister to His Reverence.

In Mr. Ernest Bellaney's consignment, which come up on Friday evening, there is a colt by Trimdon out of Lovely Peg, a Sansovino colt out of Comet, a Bosworth filly out of Surbine, a chestnut filly by Singapore out of Mellowness. Mr. D. R. Browning's contribution comes into the ring on Friday also. Then follows the Confey Stud with four very choice yearlings. The outstanding member of this draft is a Fairway colt out of Silver Mist, who is a picture to look at.

ATHLETICS

STRONG FINNISH TEAM TO MEET BRITAIN

HELSINKI, Monday.

Finland has chosen a very strong team to meet Great Britain at the Djurgarden Sports Ground here on Saturday and Sunday. It includes I. Salminen, the Olympic 10,000 metres champion and world record holder; V. Iso Hollo, the Olympic steeplechase champion; M. Jarvinen, the world record holder for the javelin throw; Taisto Maki, the youngster who followed San Romani home last week in the new world record for the 2,000 metres (Maki himself beating the previous record); K. Tuominen, who was second in the Olympic Steeplechase; K. Kotkas, who was fourth in the Olympic high jump, and who recently threw the discus 174ft. 2¼ins., and Sulo Berlund, who was second in the Olympic weight putt.

The tit-bit of the meeting will be the clash of Peter Ward, the Cambridge runner, and Salminen. Ward has not been beaten this year, and a great race is expected.

WATER POLO

LEINSTER JUNIOR CUP GOES TO U.C.D.

U.C.D. .... 6 BRAY COVE 0

University College, Dublin, have a strong water polo team this year, easily the strongest in the junior division. Last night, at Blackrock Baths, they met Bray Cove in the final of the Leinster Junior Cup, and won readily. Bray Cove played pluckily, but could not cope with the speed and better understanding of their opponents; and, although the students twice were a man short, the Bray team was unable to score.

Tallon opened the scoring early, and before half-time O'Toole and he made the issue safe. The second half was uninteresting, and Byrne, Nowlan, and O'Toole added further scores.

University College—K. O'Doherty; E. Byrne and F. Hill; J. Collins, J. O'Toole (capt.), J. Tallon, and W. O. Nowlan.

Bray Cove—W. J. Wilmot; J. White, R. O'Flynn; J. P. Groome (capt.); J. Kent, D. Corbett, and B. Wilmot.

YORKSHIRE CHAMPIONS

Middlesex Save the Follow-On: New Zealanders Win

BEATING Hampshire by ten wickets at Bournemouth yesterday, Yorkshire became county champions for the nineteenth time. Last year they finished third to Derbyshire and Middlesex, and in 1934, when their team was often weakened owing to the claims of Test matches with Australia, they were sixth. Otherwise the county has had an uninterrupted run of success in the championship since the season 1931, and A. B. Sellers, the captain, has had the distinction of leading his side to the top on four occasions.

Play went on until nearly 7 o'clock before Yorkshire won. At one time Hampshire, who were 98 behind on the first innings, looked like offering little resistance, for six men were out for 57 before Pothecary and Hill showed that the Yorkshire bowling could be punished. Their effort, however, came too late, and Yorkshire were left to get no more than 88 to win.

A hundred by Armstrong enabled Leicestershire to make a good reply to Warwickshire's big total at Oakham, and there was an exciting struggle for first innings lead at Taunton, where Lancashire gained the advantage by three runs. Meyer and Gimblett added 90 in an hour, when Somerset went in again.

Notts, despite two grand knocks by Hardstaff, had all the worst of the match at Bristol. Hardstaff hit up 77 in three-quarters of an hour, and hit twelve fours. Derbyshire fell before Kent by 100 runs at Folkestone. George Pope showed magnificent all-round form, but Derbyshire collapsed badly a second time on a worn pitch, and Essex beat Worcestershire by an innings and ten runs at Clacton.

Pat Hendren, making his final bow at Lord's, hit up a glorious century—the 170th of his career, and his fifth this summer—against Surrey, and Edrich made 96. Thus Middlesex saved the follow-on.

The New Zealanders beat Sussex by an innings and 232 runs after putting together the highest score of their tour. Donnelly hit two sixes and eleven fours during a stay of an hour and a half, while Wallace, who enjoyed the satisfaction of completing his century, also claimed eleven boundary strokes in addition to one six.

THE SCENES AT KILCOHAN PARK

RUMOURED ACTION OF WATERFORD CLUB

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WATERFORD, Monday.

Will Waterford Free State League team withdraw from all competitions as a protest against the conduct of a certain section of the spectators at Sunday's Shield game with Shamrock Rovers? The possibility of such drastic action being taken was being freely canvassed in the city to-day, when rumours to this effect gained currency.

Mr. John Holden, secretary to the Waterford Club, declined to either confirm or deny the rumour, for which, he said, however there was some foundation. The committee of management are to discuss the matter in private, he added, and they may take the extreme measure of withdrawing from all competitions. "Certainly," he declared, "they are not going to tolerate a recurrence of yesterday's unruly scenes, which are becoming too frequent at Kilcohan."

An official statement regarding the management committee's decision is expected to-morrow.

WATERFORD AND NORTH MUNSTER LEAGUE

It was decided at a conference held at Waterford on Saturday, at which were present delegates from the Free State F.A., the Junior Committee of the F.S.F.A., Waterford F.C., Waterford and North Munster League and the Munster F.A., that the league this season consist of four divisions—viz., senior, junior, minor and factory. Waterford F.C. has agreed to enter the "B" team for the senior section and to withdraw its entry from the Munster Senior League. Clubs competing in the senior division will be eligible to compete in the national and divisional Junior Cup competitions.

STORM STOPS MATCH

The English League (Third Division) match between Walsall and Mansfield Town at Walsall yesterday opened amid a storm of thunder and lightning, and when heavy rain began to fall it was impossible to follow the flight of the ball. The game was abandoned after thirty-two minutes' play, neither side having scored.

AMERICAN WOMEN'S DOUBLES TITLE

BROOKLINE, MASS., Monday.

Miss Alice Marble, American singles champion, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, both Wightman Cup players, won the American women's doubles title here to-day. In the final they beat Miss Caroline Babcock and Mrs. Marjorie van Ryn, another American pair who won the title last year, by 7-5, 6-4.

The semi-finals and final of the mixed doubles, which have twice been postponed owing to rain, will be played at Forest Hills, where the singles championships will be held next week-end, weather permitting.

THE MEN'S DOUBLES

The men's doubles title went to the crack German pair, G. von Cramm and H. Henkel, who beat the defending champions, Donald Budge and Gene Mako by 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, in the final. The Germans thus gained revenge for their defeats by the Americans in the Davis Cup and at Wimbledon.

BOXING

KANE TO TRY FOR LYNCH'S TITLES

£6,000 OFFER FOR FIGHT IN GLASGOW

Peter Kane, the Liverpool boxer, who has fought his way to a world title fight with Benny Lynch, the Scottish holder, is to remain a fly-weight, and the men have been offered a purse of £6,000 by Mr. George Dingley, junior, the Glasgow promoter, for a contest in that city, probably on September 29.

"Lynch wants to fight in Glasgow," said Mr. Dingley yesterday, "and I am only waiting for a reply to my offer from Liverpool. Kane, as challenger, would net 25 per cent. of what is probably the best purse ever offered to fly-weights in Great Britain."

Meanwhile Kane and his manager, Mr. Ted Denvir, were in conference to decide whether the Golbourne fly-weight should challenge for the bantam-weight class. After a long talk Kane decided to remain a fly-weight and make a bid for Lynch's triple crown—world, European and British championships. "I am not so pushed to make 8st. that I have to go into the bantams," said Kane. "I can make the poundage for Lynch, and beat him at that."

Referring to the £6,000 offer Mr. Denvir said: "Yes, that is correct. I was first offered a guarantee, but now there is this. I shall come to a definite decision in a day or two."

BILLIARDS

THE DUBLIN LEAGUE

At a meeting of the I.A.B.A. last night, Mr. J. O'Mara presiding, it was announced that there would be eleven teams in this year's competition, an increase of three from last year. Bakers (Dun Laoghaire), Central and Raymonds (Blessington street) are the newcomers. The draw will be made next Monday.

It was decided to confine the competition to one round this year owing to the number of other events on the programme. It was also decided to have a handicap in connection with the League, the handicaps instead of being sealed, as in last year's competition, to be published in the later stages of the competition.

Men, women and children, wearing only their night clothes, hurriedly escaped from their homes above a dance hall in Edgware road, London, early on Sunday, when fire broke out on the premises. Firemen from the adjoining Edgware road station fought the flames for two hours, but were unable to save the dance hall, which was destroyed.

POULTRY, FISH, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SELECTING AND MARKING BREEDING STOCK.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—
To identify birds that have merited a place in your breeding stock for next season, slip celluloid rings all of the same colour on the legs of the selected birds, using one ring for each bird. If you still want to keep up a distinguishing mark between different strains mark one strain with yellow rings, another with green, and so on. And, again, keep an entry in your record book as to what each colour represents. Then you will know where you are when the progeny of these birds take their turn in the trapnests. In addition to marking the best birds, trap-nesting will enable the duds and bad layers, as well as layers of small or badly-shaped eggs, to be detected and to be excluded from the future breeders. This is part of the practical work connected with building up a good strain, and is well worth while for anyone who really wants to conduct poultry-keeping on up-to-date lines. Make ready now to begin it this season by having your trap-nest all ready and your pullets ringed before September.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

The Little Chapel which Mr. Hugh Turtle has presented to Edgehill College, Belfast, the Theological College of the Methodist Church in Ireland, is being dedicated for Divine Worship this afternoon by the President of the Methodist Church in Ireland, the Rev. C. H. Crookshank. In order to accommodate all who will desire to take part in the ceremony loudspeakers are being placed on the lawn. The "Refresher Course," which is held annually at Edgehill College, opens on Tuesday morning. There will be courses of lectures by the Rev. Harold Roberts, M.A., Ph.D., of Headingley College, Leeds; the Rev. A. McCrea, M.A. the Rev. W. L. Northridge, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., and Dr. Carl Polkany. At the evening session Mr. A. M. Fullerton, O.B.E., will speak on the "Plans for the Bi-Centenary Celebration of Methodism."

After the partition of Ireland the Northern Government commandeered the Methodist Manse at Pettigo as a barracks for the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the Manse being situated in that part of the town which is within the six county area. A new Constabulary barracks has now been built, and the Manse is being completely renovated and refurnished at a cost of £300.

Lurgaw High street Circuit is prospering under the able leadership of its two ministers, the Rev. John A. Duke, B.A., and the Rev. W. E Eames. One of the latest improvements is the installation of a pipe organ in the Lurgan High street Church. The organ adds greatly to the appearance of the sanctuary, and will be a great help to its services.

John Wesley, in his many itinerant journeys over Ireland, preached at Ballinbech graveyard, near Tandragee. The Service has been continued annually ever since, and enjoys unabated popularity with the passing years. There was a huge crowd present at the Service this year. Friends from Lisburn, Tandragee, Scarva, Banbridge, Portadown, and Lurgan helped to swell the throng. The Rev. H. I. Johnston conducted the Service, and addresses were given by the Rev. J. A. L. Irvine, of Cranagill, the Rev. R. J. J. Teasey, of Lurgan, and Mr. S. J. Briggs, Evangelist.

The half-yearly meetings of the District Synods of the Church will be held this week. The Dublin Synod will meet in Bray, one session being devoted to the Bi-Centenary Commemoration of Methodism. The Belfast Synod meets in Bangor, Co. Down, and at the afternoon session the Rev. A. McCrea will speak on the Edinburgh Conference on Faith and Order.

The Rev. F. B. Rea, M.A., B.D., whose services were lent for three years to the Student Christian Movement, has sailed with his bride for educational mission work under the Methodist Missionary Society at Tegwani Training Institution, Southern Rhodesia. Mr. Rea's services as secretary for Ireland of the Student Christian Movement will not soon be forgotten.

The Rev. W. J. McKee, of Wilmington, U.S.A., a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America, who will be in Ireland for a year, is to take charge of the work in Carnlough on the Larne Circuit.

The Rev. R. T. Kerr, of Lahore, will be returning to India in September. He has been supplying in the Rev. Norman Dunning's church in the London Mission during the month of August. Last Sunday he preached in Kingsway Hall, London.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

MOTOR COLLISION IN DUBLIN

TWO DRIVERS FINED

(BEFORE MR. M. J. LENNON.)

Maurice Gordon, 7 Lower Liffey street, and Joseph Herron, 42B South Circular road, were each fined £5 and ordered to pay £3 10s. witness' expenses between them for not exercising reasonable care in the use of motor vehicles at the crossing of South Circular road and Heytesbury street on the night of 16th June last, when a collision occurred between the car driven by Gordon and a motor cycle combination driven by Herron.

Evidence was given that the motor combination came out of Heytesbury street, and, when half-way across the road, it was struck by Gordon's car, driving towards Kelly's Corner. Herron and a passenger in the side-car were pitched out, and Herron had to be brought to hospital. The motor car also was overturned, but neither Gordon nor any of the men in it were injured.

A summons against Herron for driving without a licence was dismissed under the Probation Act, the licence having expired on the day prior to the collision.

Mr. J. J. Kearns (Chief State Solicitor's Department) prosecuted, Mr. Garland (instructed by Messrs. Good and Murray) appeared for Gordon, and Mr. L. Trant McCarthy appeared for Herron.

FOUR MEN SENT FOR TRIAL

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Stephen O'Reilly, Upper Wellington street; James Kerwick, Lower Wellington street; John Byrne, Henry place, and Patrick Doyle, Greenore terrace, Grand Canal street, were returned for trial on the charge of having obtained money by means of a trick from Messrs. Mirrelson, bookmakers, Burgh quay, Dublin. Bail was allowed.

Mr. M. Boland, solicitor, appeared for O'Reilly; Mr. P. Campbell appeared for Kerwick; Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, appeared for Byrne; Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor's office, for Doyle; Mr. M. Noyk appeared for Messrs. Mirrelson.

MILK FINES

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

John Mahon, Meath street, was fined 10s. for selling milk deficient of 8.3 per cent. of its fats.

Eugene Walsh, 36a Wexford street, was fined £3 for selling butter adulterated with 40 per cent. of margarine.

The defence was that the assistant in a branch shop inadvertently must have returned the margarine left over after selling a portion to a customer to the butter slab. Mr. Cowan, solicitor, for Mr. Walsh, said that his client had decided not to sell any more margarine loose, so that there would be no further danger of a recurrence of the offence.

Mr. H. Bonass, solicitor, appeared for Dublin Corporation.

ALLEGED RAID ON BUNGALOW

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Patrick Carroll, Congress Gardens, Glasthule, was charged with having entered The Bungalow, Spencer Villas, Glenageary, and presented a revolver at Miss Rose Haddock, whilst at the same time demanding money. There were also charges against him of assaulting Miss Haddock by presenting the revolver, and with having a revolver illegally in his possession. Matthew Doyle, 66 Eden Villas, Glasthule, was charged with conspiring with Carroll to commit a felony.

The accused men were remanded in custody until Thursday next

Mr. D. O'Donovan (Chief State Solicitor's Department) prosecuted, and Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, appeared for the defence.

FLAT TYRE CAUSES DEATH

"A MATTER OF LUCK"

An inquest was held yesterday on James Stanley Hart aged 22, secretary, of Blainscaugh Hall, Coppull, Lancashire, who was killed on the Birmingham track last Wednesday when riding for the Belle Vue Merseysiders in a Provincial League match against Birmingham. It was stated that he fell off his machine, and a Birmingham rider, who was following close behind, crashed into the fallen machine and was himself thrown, but escaped without injury.

Oliver Hart, brother of James Stanley Hart, and another member of the Merseysiders' team, who was riding at the same meeting, expressed the opinion that his brother fell off as the result of a flat back tyre on which he had ridden for some time. He said that it was not an uncommon thing for a rider to carry on after one of his tyres had gone flat.

The Coroner—It seems rather a dangerous business to continue in the race with a tyre down. Have you ever known a flat tyre bring a man off before?—It has brought me off many a time.

It is a matter of luck whether you get run over or not?—Yes, sir.

Is the winning of the race so very important that you must take your life in your hands to do it?—Well, I do not know. It does not seem it now, but when you are doing it it does

Is there no rule saying that if your tyre collapses you must drop out of the race?—I do not know of one.

You ride yourself, of course?—I did; but I have finished now.

The official machine examiner expressed the opinion that the cause of the accident was not an ordinary puncture, but a sudden burst as a result of the inner tube chafing on metal in the rim of the wheel, which had become exposed. It was much more difficult to control the machine after a burst like this than with an ordinary flat tyre.

Other witnesses said that the other rider involved, Malcolm Craven, who is under contract to Wembley, while on loan to Birmingham, could not avoid Hart's machine, which his bike struck and then went on to hit Hart, who was just beginning to raise himself off the ground.

The Coroner observed that it was the first dirt track fatality in Birmingham. As far as he could judge, very considerable care was exercised with regard to the sport by everyone concerned.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

At the end of the inquiry Oliver Hart had to go back to Coppull, where he was to give evidence at another inquest, this time on his four years old nephew.

John Fullerton, of Susan street, Belfast, who appeared before Mr. J. H. Campbell, R.M., in the Belfast Custody Court yesterday, charged with acting in a manner which might have led to a breach of the peace, was fined 20s. and costs. Constable Heaney said there was a crowd accompanying a band to the boat. The crowd was disorderly. Witness told accused to go home, and Fullerton adopted a fighting attitude.

GRIEVANCE ABOUT A PENSION

ALUMINIUM LEG THROWN AWAY

He went to the Admiralty and the clerks "adopted the attitude of a Mussolini." He sought advice at a police court and was "treated like a worm." He went to the Cenotaph, took off his artificial leg and threw it to the ground.

This was James Michael Joyce's own story at Bow street, London, yesterday, when he was accused of using insulting words and behaviour.

Joyce (53), of Basing road, Peckham, London, had a grievance concerning a pensions matter, and, on a representative of the Pensions Ministry telling the magistrate that this appeared to be genuine and would be considered, he was discharged under the Probation Act.

Constable George Carruthers said that he saw Joyce sitting at the foot of the Cenotaph waving his arms and shouting: "I want —— justice." His artificial leg was thrown from him a distance of about three yards

JOYCE'S STATEMENT

"He has omitted two important points," said Joyce. "He has not acknowledged that I was evicted by the police from the Admiralty on Friday afternoon, and he has not reported that I came here on Saturday morning seeking justice, and was rebuked and treated like a worm. In my temper I determined to get justice.

"I have been looking for facilities to see the Admiralty for six months. As a citizen I have been there to place a genuine grievance, but the clerks adopted the attitude of a Mussolini and refused to see me. I am determined to see them, and I will do so regardless of what transpires. The papers say I threw my leg at the Cenotaph. I would never commit such a crime. I threw it away from the Cenotaph. It is aluminium, and will not bounce. Where I throw it it stops."

The magistrate told Joyce that the one way in which he could not help himself was by making a disturbance at the Cenotaph. If he did it again he would have to be sent to prison.
